No. 3.—The Governor-General in Council is pleased to announce that the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India has approved :—

(1) The grant of free rations to all combatant Indian ranks of the Indian Army except when on furlough or leave.

(2) Increases of pay to combatant Indian officers and non-commissioned officers as follows :—

	Rs.
Subadar-Major and Risaldar-Major	30
Subadar, Risaldar and Ressaidar	20
Jemadar	10
Havildar and Dafadar	2
Naik and Lance Dafadar	1

These increases of pay will have effect from the 1st January 1917.

Pending the completion of arrangements for the supply of rations, a temporary ration allowance of Rs. 2 per mensem will be granted to all combatant ranks in India not on furlough or leave and not in receipt of free rations, from the 1st January 1917 until departmental arrangements can be made to issue rations in kind. This sum will be drawn in addition to the normal compensation for dearness of provisions till rations are issued in kind, when both money allowance and compensation will cease.

Should it be found necessary or advisable at any time or in any particular localities to substitute a money allowance in lieu of rations in kind the Government of India reserve to themselves the right to make such substitution as may be necessary or convenient.

Troops which, in certain localities, were, prior to the issue of these orders, in receipt of free rations or a money allowance in lieu, will continue to receive rations or money allowance as heretofore until the introduction of a universal ration or rate of money allowance in lieu thereof.

Troops in Assam which have hitherto been rationed by Government on payment of Rs. 3-8-0 a man per mensem will from the 1st January 1917 receive rations free of charge.

5. Qualifications.—Candidates must have obtained a degree with Honours in some branch of Natural Science* in a University of England, Wales, or Ireland, or have passed the Final Bachelor of Science Examination in Pure Science in one of the Universities of Scotland.† A degree in Applied Science will not be considered as fulfilling these conditions. Candidates will be required to produce evidence that they have a fair knowledge of either German or French.

Note.—Applications for appointment will be accepted from candidates who on the 1st July 1917 have already sat at an examination for a degree as mentioned above, but have not learned the result of the examination.

6. Should there be more candidates considered to be qualified in every respect than vacancies to be filled, the Secretary of State reserves the right to require them to pass a competitive examination conducted by the Civil Service Commissioners, on the results of which their final selection would depend. Particulars of this examination, which would be held in August, will be found in Appendix II.

7. Medical Examination.—Selected candidates will be required to undergo a strict examination by a Medical Board at the India Office, at which particular stress will be laid on good vision and hearing, and to satisfy the Secretary of State for India that they are physically fit for service in the Indian Forest Department (see Appendix VII).

Candidates who do not satisfy the Secretary of State for India that they are physically fit for appointment to the Indian Forest Service will not be admitted to the competitive examination mentioned in Regulation 6.

8. Period of Probation.—Before appointment to the Indian Forest Department, a probationer will be required :—

(i) to have obtained, either before selection as probationer, or within the period of two years' probation, the degree or diploma in Forestry at one of the Universities named in the margin ; ‡

‡ Oxford, Cambridge, or Edinburgh.

* A Moderatorship in Natural Science or in Experimental Science at the University of Dublin will be considered as fulfilling these conditions.

(iv) to have undergone a final competitive examination in Forestry (see Appendix III.);

The period of probation will in ordinary cases be two years. The Director of Indian Forest Studies will instruct probationers in each case as to the order and manner in which they should fulfil these various requirements.

9. Charges.—The probationers will be required to defray all expenses of lodging, board, tuition, and excursions, while at the University, and on practical instruction in Great Britain and on the Continent, with the exception of fees payable to local forest officers in Great Britain and on the Continent.

10. Allowances.—The Secretary of State for India in Council will make payments to each probationer at the rate of 120*l.* annually, not exceeding a total of 240*l.* (besides the fees to local officers mentioned above). These payments will ordinarily be made on the following dates in each year:—

On the 1st December	30
On the 1st March	30

(b) that the probationer gives security to refund the payments in respect of this advance, as well as such payments, not exceeding 60*l.* in all, as may have been incurred by the Secretary of State on the probationer's behalf in respect of fees to local forest officers, in the event of his failing to qualify for an appointment in the Indian Forest Service, or not signing the articles of agreement as specified in paragraph 13, or failing to join the Indian Forest Service at the end of the period of probation.

11. Conduct.—Every probationer will be required to conduct himself during the period of probation in a manner satisfactory to the Secretary of State, and to give evidence of satisfactory progress in his studies in such a manner as may be required, failing which, or in the event of serious misconduct, he will be liable to have his name removed from the list of probationers.

12. Appointment and Seniority.—Probationers who comply with the requirements of Regulation 8 within the sanctioned period of time, and also satisfy such other tests as may be prescribed; will be appointed Assistant Conservators in the Indian Forest Department, provided they are of sound constitution and free from physical defects which would render them unsuitable for employment in the Indian Forest Service. Their position in the provincial Forest Lists will be determined by the Secretary of State for India in Council on the report of the Director of Indian Forest Studies; but in making selections for the post of Conservator, officers joining the service in the same year are reckoned as equal in seniority unless the Secretary of State for India in Council shall for special reasons have directed otherwise in any particular case or cases.

Probationers will be allowed at the end of the period of probation to state their preference in respect to the Provinces to which they desire to be allotted; but the distribution will be made to the several Provinces according to the needs of the public service, at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India in Council. Officers are, however, at all times liable to be transferred from one Province to another at the pleasure of the Government of India.

13. Articles of Agreement.—A probationer is required, on qualifying for appointment as Assistant Conservator, to sign articles of agreement setting forth the terms and conditions of his appointment; he must embark for India when required to do so by the Secretary of State. Failure to embark at the stated time will, in the absence of satisfactory explanation, lead to forfeiture of appointment.

14. Passage to India.—Each probationer on appointment to the Indian Forest Service will be provided with a free first-class passage to India.

15. Salary.—An Assistant Conservator of Forests will draw pay at the rate of Rs. 380 a month (equivalent to 304*l.* a year, when the rupee is at 1*s.* 4*d.*) from the date of his reporting his arrival in India.

16. Promotion, Leave, Pension and Provident Fund.—Promotion, leave, and pension will be governed by the Regulations laid down by the Government of India, and applicable to Forest officers, such regulations being subject to any modifications or alterations which may be made in them from time to time by the Government of India, and their interpretation in case of any doubt arising being left to that Government. A copy of the existing regulations can be seen on application at the India Office.

Certain information regarding appointments in the upper controlling staff of the Indian Forest Service, the pay of which has been recently improved, will be found in Appendix IV; a summary of information regarding leave is contained in Appendix V; and regarding Pensions and the Provident Fund in Appendix VI.

3. The grant of the concession described in paragraph (2) will be at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India in Council, whose decision in each case will be final. Candidates who contemplate applying for an age deduction under (2) will do well to apply to the India Office for a ruling on their case.

4. Candidates to be eligible for the concessions in (1) or (2) must furnish an official certificate of the period and satisfactory character of their service, and if any doubt arise whether the service of any candidate is of the kind contemplated by this notice, the Secretary of State for India in Council reserves the right to decide the case upon its merits.

APPENDIX V.

[NOTE.—Appendices V and VI are intended merely to show the principal leave and pension rules in the Civil Service Regulations at present applicable to officers appointed to the Indian Forest Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom, without going into minute details, and do not profess to deal with every case that may arise. The rules are subject to alteration, and any disputed question must be decided with reference to the authorised text of the Civil Service Regulations for the time being.]

LEAVE.

Long Leave.

1. Furlough and special leave with allowances (see paragraph 5) are admissible to an aggregate maximum amount of six years during an officer's service. The amount of furlough "earned" is one-fourth of an officer's active service, and the amount "due" is that amount less any enjoyed.

2. Furlough without medical certificate can, if due, be generally taken after eight years' active service, and again after intervals of not less than three years' continuous service. It is limited to two years at a time.

3. Furlough on medical certificate may be granted (a) to an officer who has rendered three years' continuous service, for not more than two years, but capable of extension up to three years; and (b) to an officer who has not rendered three years' continuous service, up to one year in any case, and up to such longer period, if any (but not exceeding two years in all), as the officer may have furlough "due" to him.

4. The allowances admissible during furlough are :—

(1) During the first two years of furlough without medical certificate and during so much of furlough with medical certificate as may be "due"—half average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

(2) After the expiration of the period for which the foregoing allowances are admissible—one quarter of average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

5. Special Leave may be granted at any time for not more than six months, with intervals of six years' service; allowances, calculated as during furlough, are given during the first six months only, whether taken in one or more instalments.

Short Leave.

6. Privilege leave is a holiday which may be granted to the extent of one-eleventh part of the time that an officer has been on duty without interruption; and it may be accumulated up to three months, earned by 33 months' duty. During privilege leave, the officer retains a lien on his appointment, and receives the salary which he would have received if on duty. An interval of not less than six months must elapse between two periods of absence on privilege leave.

Privilege leave may be prefixed to furlough, special leave, or extraordinary leave without allowances. The whole period of leave thus taken in combination is known as combined leave. Combined leave may not be granted for a period of less duration than six months, nor, except on medical certificate, may it be extended beyond two years.

7. Subsidiary leave in India for a minimum of 10 days, usually with half average salary, is granted to an officer proceeding on or returning from leave out of India, or on retirement, to enable him to reach the port of embarkation or to rejoin his appointment. It is admissible only at the end and not at the beginning of combined leave.

8. Short leave is also granted to enable officers to appear at examinations, etc.

9. Extraordinary leave without allowances may be granted in case of necessity, and, except in certain specified cases, only when no other kind of leave is by rule admissible. It may be granted in continuation of other leave.

General Rules.

10. Leave of absence can never be claimed as of right, and is given or refused at the discretion of Government.

11. When leave allowances other than privilege leave pay are paid at the Home Treasury or in a Colony where the standard of currency is gold, rupees are converted into sterling at the rate of exchange fixed for the time being for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and Indian Treasuries, unless any other rate has been exceptionally authorised. But for the present the rate of conversion is subject to a minimum of 1*s*. 6*d*. to the Rupee. Privilege Leave pay when issued from the Home Treasury (this is only admissible when privilege leave is combined with other leave) is converted at 1*s*. 4*d*. to the rupee.

APPENDIX VI.

(See note under Appendix V.)

PENSIONS AND PROVIDENT FUND.

1. An officer of the Indian Forest Service is eligible for a pension on voluntary retirement after completing 20 years' qualifying service or attaining the age of 55 years. If at an earlier date he is compelled to retire from the service through ill-health, not occasioned by irregular or intemperate habits, he becomes eligible for an invalid pension or a gratuity according to the length of his service.

The amount of pension or gratuity is regulated as follows :—

After a service of less than 10 years, an invalid gratuity not exceeding one month's emoluments for each completed year of service.

After a service of not less than 10 years an invalid pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

Years of Completed Service.	Maximum Limit of pension.

15, 16, 17, 18, 19	3,000 „

After a service of not less than 20 years, a retiring pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

20 to 24	30	Rs. 4,000 a year.
25 and above	30	5,000 „

Officers who have shown special energy and efficiency during an effective service of three years as Inspector-General of Forests or Conservator may, at the discretion of the Government of India, be allowed an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year, subject to the condition that the officer must not retire voluntarily before the completion of a total qualifying service of 28 years.

Subject to certain prescribed conditions, rupee pensions are now issued to pensioners residing in countries where the Indian rupee is not legal tender at the rate of exchange of 1*s*. 9*d*. the rupee.

2. A General Provident Fund has also been established on the following basis :—

(a) The contribution is compulsory up to 6¼ per cent. on salaries, with voluntary contributions of not more than a further 9⅜ per cent. Subscriptions on leave of any kind are optional.

(b) Compound interest on such payments is annually credited by Government to each officer subscribing, the rate being at present 4 per cent. per annum.

(c) The sum which thus accumulates to the credit of an officer is his absolute property, subject to the rules of the Fund, and is handed over to him, unconditionally, on quitting the service; or, in the event of his death before retirement, to his legal representatives or such other person or persons as, under and subject to the rules of the Fund for the time being in force, may be entitled thereto

(d) Other forms of life insurance will, however, if they fulfil certain conditions, be accepted in lieu of the contributions in (a).

APPENDIX VII.

GENERAL PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS.

[Note.—These Regulations are published for the convenience of candidates and in order to enable them to ascertain the probability of their coming up to the required physical standard. But it must be clearly understood that the Secretary of State reserves to himself an absolute discretion to reject as unfit any candidate whom he may consider, after hearing the opinion of his medical advisers, to be physically disqualified for the public service ; and that his discretion is in no respect limited by these Regulations.]

1. A candidate must be in good mental and bodily health and free from any physical defect likely to interfere with efficient performance of duty.

2. In the examination of candidates the Medical Board will apply the following table of correlation of age, height, and chest girth :—

Age.	Height without Shoes.	CHEST.
		Girth when expanded.	Range of Expansion.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
19 to 20	62½ and under 65 . .	35	2
	65 „ 68 . . .	35	2
	68 „ 70 . . .	35½	2
	70 „ 72 . . .	36	2
	72 and upwards . . .	36½	2½
21 and upwards	62½ and under 65 . . .	35	2
	65 „ 68 . . .	35½	2
	68 „ 70 . . .	36	2
	70 „ 72 . . .	36½	2½
	72 and upwards . . .	37	2½

3. Measurement of Height.—The candidate will be placed against the standard with his feet together, and the weight thrown on the heels, and not on the toes or outside of the feet. He will stand erect without rigidity, and with the heels, calves, buttocks, and shoulders touching the standard; the chin will be depressed to bring the vertex of the head level under the horizontal bar, and the height will be noted in parts of an inch to eighths. No fixed limit of height is imposed.

4. Measurement of Chest.—The candidate will be made to stand erect with his feet together, and to raise his hands above his head. The tape will be carefully adjusted round the chest, the posterior upper edge touching the inferior angles of the shoulder blades, and its anterior lower edge the upper part of the nipples. The arms will then be lowered to hang loosely by the side, and rare will be taken that the shoulders are not thrown upwards or backwards so as to displace the tape. The candidate will then be directed to empty his chest of air as much as possible. This is best done by continuous whistling with the lips as long as sound can be produced. The tape is carefully gathered in during the process, and when the minimum measurement is reached it is recorded. The candidate will then be directed to inflate his chest to its utmost capacity. This maximum measurement will likewise be noted. The girth with the chest fully expanded and the range of expansion between the minimum and the maximum will then be recorded.

5. The hearing must be good.

6. The speech without impediment.

7. The teeth in good order, i.e., decayed or broken teeth must be properly stopped or crowned, and deficient teeth replaced by artificial teeth where necessary for effective mastication.

8. The chest must be well formed, the lungs and heart sound.

9. Rupture, hydrocele, varicocele, varicose veins in a severe degree, or other condition likely to cause inefficiency will disqualify a candidate, unless such condition is cured by operation.

10. The limbs, feet, and toes must be well formed and developed, with free and perfect motion of all the joints.

11. A candidate must have no congenital malformation or defect likely to interfere with efficiency.

12. A candidate must not be the subject of chronic skin disease.

13. Evidence of previous acute or chronic disease pointing to an impaired constitution will disqualify.

14. Candidates may, if they wish it, undergo a preliminary examination as to their physical fitness by the Medical Board, which meets at the India Office every Tuesday, under the following conditions :—

(a) Applications must be addressed to the Under Secretary of State, India Office, Whitehall, London, accompanied by a fee of two guineas.

(b) Candidates must pay their travelling expenses.

(c) It must be understood that the opinion of the Medical Board, which will be communicated by the Board to the candidate at the end of the examination, is solely for the candidate's own information and is not an official finding. The Board, if they consider a candidate unfit, will exercise their discretion as to informing him of the particular grounds on which their opinion is based. No further information can in any case be given as to the Medical Board's opinion which will be confined solely to the physical fitness of the candidate; and any question as to the eligibility of the candidate, if found physically fit, to be admitted to the particular Indian service which he desires to enter, should be addressed in writing to the Under Secretary of State.

(d) Candidates considered to be unfit by the Medical Board at this preliminary examination are not bound to accept its opinion, but may, at their own risk, continue their studies, with the knowledge that they will have to submit themselves for a final medical examination by the Medical Board prior to their appointment.

(e) As the preliminary examination by the Medical Board is held solely for the candidate's information, a candidate who is informed after such an examination that he is physically fit will have on that account no claim to be accepted as physically fit when he presents himself for the final medical examination, upon which alone his acceptance or rejection will depend. Candidates may be considered fit for the Service at the preliminary examination, but may be found at the final examination, to be unfit, either, on account of some physical defect which did not exist or passed undetected at the preliminary examination, or for other reasons.

REGULATIONS AS TO THE STANDARD OF VISION FOR THE INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

1. If myopia in one or both eyes exists, a candidate may be passed, provided the ametropia does not exceed 2·5 D, and if with correcting glasses, not exceeding 2·5 D, the acuteness of vision in one eye equals $\frac{6}{9}$ and in the other $\frac{6}{6}$, there being normal range of accommodation with the glasses.

2. Myopic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate for service, provided the lens or the combined spherical and cylindrical lenses required to correct the error of refraction do not exceed—2·5 D; the acuteness of vision in one eye, when corrected, being equal to $\frac{6}{6}$, and in the other eye $\frac{6}{9}$, together with normal range of accommodation with the correcting glasses, there being no evidence of progressive disease in the choroid or retina.

3. A candidate having total hypermetropia not exceeding 4 D is not disqualified, provided the sight in one eye (when under the influence of atropine) equals $\frac{6}{9}$, and in the other eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ with + 4 D or any lower power.

5. A candidate having a defect of vision arising from nebula of the cornea is disqualified if the sight of one eye be less than $\frac{6}{12}$. In such a case the better eye must be emmetropic. Defects of vision arising from pathological or other changes in the deeper structures of either eye, which are not referred to in the above rules, may exclude a candidate for admission into the service.

6. Squint, or any morbid condition, subject to the risk of aggravation or recurrence, in either eye, may cause the rejection of a candidate. The existence of imperfection of colour sense will be noted on the candidate's papers.

The Stocks are investments authorized by the Trustee Act, 1893, and Trustees may invest therein notwithstanding that the price may at the time of investment exceed the redemption value of £100 per cent.

The Governor and Company of the Bank of England are authorized to receive applications for the above loans which will take the form of Stock or Bonds to bearer at the option of subscribers. Stock may be inscribed as transferable in the stock transfer books or may be registered as transferable by deed.

Applications which may be for either loan must be for sums which are multiples of £50 and may be for either (1) "Fully paid Allotments" or (2) "Instalment Allotments."

They will be received at the Bank of England Loans Office, 5 and 6, Lombard Street, London, E.C., and may be forwarded either direct or through the medium of any banker or stockbroker in the United Kingdom.

British Government Treasury Bills will be accepted under discount at 5 per cent. per annum and War Expenditure Certificates will be accepted under discount at 5½ per cent. per annum, in both cases as from the 16th February 1917, in lieu of cash in payment for "Fully paid Allotments," provided that the entire proceeds of the Bills and Certificates are so applied.

If not previously redeemed the loans will be repaid at par as follows :—

£5 per cent. War Loan 1929—1947 on the 1st June 1947.

£4 per cent. War Loan 1929—1942 on the 15th October 1942.

But His Majesty's Government reserve to themselves the right to redeem the loans or either of them at par at any time on or after the undermentioned dates on giving three calendar months' notice in the London Gazette.

£5 per cent. War Loan 1929—1947 at any time on or after the 1st June 1929.

£4 per cent. War Loan 1929—1942 at any time on or after the 15th October 1929.

Both Capital and Interest will be a charge on the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom.

As soon as the necessary statutory authority has been obtained, arrangements will be made for the acceptance by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue of Stock and Bonds of these loans at their respective issue prices, with due allowance for any unpaid interest accrued thereon, in satisfaction of amounts due on account of death duties, provided such Stock and Bonds have formed part of the estate of the deceased for a period of not less than six months immediately preceding the date of death.

For the purpose of providing against depreciation in the market prices of the loans the Treasury undertake to set aside monthly a sum equal to one-eighth of 1 per cent. of the amount of each loan to form a fund to be used for purchasing Stock or Bonds of either loan for cancellation whenever the market price falls below the issue price. Whenever the unexpended balance of such fund reaches £10,000,000 the monthly payments will for the time being be suspended but they will be resumed as soon as the unexpended balance falls below £10,000,000.

Dividends on Inscribed and Registered Stock of the £5 per cent. War Loan 1929—1947 will be paid without deduction of income-tax, but the income derived from such dividends will be assessable to income-tax in the hands of the recipients at the rates of tax appropriate to their respective incomes.

Dividends on the £4 per cent. loan will be exempt from liability to assessment to British income-tax other than super-tax. For the purposes of super-tax and in computing total income for the purposes of exemption, abatement, reduced rate of income-tax on earned or unearned income, etc., the income derived from such dividends will be treated as if the amount received represented the net income after reduction of income-tax at the full normal rate. There will, however, be no title to repayment of income-tax in respect of such untaxed dividends.

Stock and Bonds of these loans and the dividends payable frome time to time in respect thereon will be exempt from all British taxation present or future if it is shown in the manner directed by the Treasury that they are in the beneficial ownership of a person who is neither domiciled nor ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. Further the dividends payable from time to time in respect of Stock and Bonds of these loans will be exempt from British income-tax present or future if it is shown in the manner directed by the Treasury that the Stock or Bonds are in the beneficial ownership of a person who is not ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland without regard to the question of domicile. Where a bond belongs to a holder entitled to exemption under these provisions the relative coupons will be paid without deduction for income-tax or other taxes if accompanied by a declaration of ownership in such form as may be required by the Treasury.

The books of the loans will be kept at the Bank of England and at the Bank of Ireland. Dividends on stock will be paid by warrant which will be sent by post. Dividends on bonds will be paid by coupons.

Stock will be convertible into bonds to bearer at any time by means of transfer and bonds to bearer will be exchangeable for stock without payment of any fee.

Powers of attorney for the transfer of inscribed stock and deeds for the transfer of registered stock will be free of stamp duty.

"Fully paid allotments" will be issued in one or other of the following forms as applicants may direct :—

1. "Certificate of inscription" of stock transferable in the stock transfer books.
2. Register certificate of stock transferable by deed.
3. Bond certificate(s) exchangeable in due course for bond(s) to bearer.

Instalment allotments will be issued in the form of "Allotment letters" which may either be retained until they are fully paid or may be exchanged for scrip certificates to bearer.

The instalments payable in respect of "instalment allotments" may be paid in full on or after the 2nd March 1917 under discount at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum. Where payment in full is made between two instalment dates discount will be calculated as from the instalment date next succeeding the date of such full payment. In case of default in the payment of any instalment by its proper date the deposit and any instalments previously paid will be liable to forfeiture. Arrangements have been made whereby holders of allotment letters will be able to make further payments without additional charge at offices of the principle banks throughout the United Kingdom.

Dividends due 15th April 1917 and 1st June 1917 in respect of allotment letters, bond certificates, and scrip certificates will be paid by coupon.

Allotment letters and scrip certificates if paid in full may be exchanged for stock on or after the following dates, viz.—

£4 per cent. War Loan 1929—1942 on or after the 13th March 1917.

Or they may be retained to be exchanged for bonds to bearer as soon as these can be prepared.

Stock will be transferable in any sums which are multiplies of a penny. Bonds to bearer will be issued in denominations of £50, £100, £200, £500, £1,000 and £5,000.

Division 2 comprises any chlorate mixture as hereinbefore defined, which is not comprised in Division 1.

Nil.

CLASS 5.—FULMINATE.

The term "fulminate" means any chemical compound or mechanical mixture, whether included in the foregoing classes or not, which, from its great susceptibility to detonation, is suitable for employment in percussion caps or any other appliances for developing detonation, or which from its extreme sensibility to explosion, and from its great instability (that is to say, readiness to undergo decomposition from very slight exciting causes) is especially dangerous.

This class consists of two divisions.

DIVISION 1.

Division 1 comprises such compounds as the fulminates of silver and of mercury, and preparations of those substances, such as are used in percussion caps; and any preparation consisting of a mixture of a chlorate with phosphorus or certain descriptions of compounds of phosphorus, with or without the addition of carbonaceous matter, and any preparation consisting of a mixture of a chlorate with sulphur, or with a sulphuret, with or without carbonaceous matter.

Electric Fuzes.

*In consequence of the results of experiments carried out, it has been decided that a percussion cap can only be properly classed as such if it contains less then 0·6 grain of a composition of the 1st Division of the 5th (Fulminate) Class of which not more than 25 per cent. consists of fulminate of mercury, or less than 0·5 grain of any other explosive of the 1st Division of the 5th (Fulminate) Class; and it has been further decided that percussion caps shall not be classed as such when they contain anvils or have their composition unprotected by tin foil or other suitable substance, as under those circumstances they are liable to explode en masse.

RESOLUTION.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO FACILITATE THE ENTRY INTO THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA OF THE WIVES AND MINOR CHILDREN OF INDIANS RESIDING IN THAT COUNTRY.

Delhi, the 12th January 1917.

THE arrangements made to facilitate the entry into the Union of South Africa of the wives and minor children of Indians residing in that country were described in the Government of India's Resolution No. 8759-8774-24 of the 3rd September 1914. In the procedure there laid down, no provision was made for the case of Indians who had left the Union on a visit to India before the date of the above Resolution, and who were therefore unable to procure the required certificate from the Immigration Officers or Magistrates in the Union.

Provision has now been made for such cases, in consultation with the Government of the Union of South Africa, and the requisite procedure is described below.

2. The husband or father on a visit to this country, who desires to obtain a certificate of relationship to facilitate the admission into the Union of South Africa of his wife or children under the age of sixteen years, should appear personally before the principal local magistrate in India, viz., the Chief Presidency Magistrate in a Presidency Town, the Political Officer in a Native State, or the District Magistrate elsewhere. The principal local magistrate in India will institute an enquiry, either personally or through an officer not below the rank of a Deputy Tahsildar, a sub-deputy Collector or a Mamlatdar according to the province concerned, and if the senior magistrate is satisfied as to the alleged relationship he will grant a certificate of relationship in the form prescribed in the Resolution above referred to in favour of the person (or persons) referred to in it. The certificate should be presented to the Immigration Officer at the port of entry.

3. The certificate will contain the identification marks of the husband or father, as well as of the wife and child, as the case may be, and will be limited in the case of children to those under the age of 16 years at the date of their arrival in the Union. In this connection it is of importance that not only the age of minor children should be certified but also the month of birth.

4. A written notice will be given to the applicant that the certificate is only a provisional one and does not in itself give either the applicant himself or the relation any claim to enter South Africa.

5. The Magistrate granting the certificate will inform the Principal Immigration Officer concerned of its issue. In the case of persons desiring to disembark at Lourenco Marques, the intimation should be addressed to the Principal Immigration Officer, Pretoria. When disembarkation will take place at Durban or Cape Town, the Principal Immigration Officer at the port indicated should be addressed.

ORDERED that the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, for information and guidance, and to the Foreign and Political Department, for communication to the Agents to the Governor-General and Political Officers in Native States.

ORDERED also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 9th January 1917.

[The Secretary of State for India in Council has decided under existing conditions not to appoint any Europeans as Assistant Engineers in the Indian Public Works and State Railway Departments in 1917. Applications for appointments will, however, be accepted from Natives of India who are qualified under the Regulations.]

INDIAN PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT AND INDIAN STATE RAILWAYS.

REGULATIONS AS TO APPOINTMENT OF ASSISTANT ENGINEERS, 1917.

[The Secretary of State is unable to give any undertaking that the Regulations will remain unaltered in the future.]

1. The Secretary of State for India in Council will, in the year 1917, make a number of appointments of Assistant Engineers in the Public Works and Stat Railway Departments of the Government of India.

In making these appointments he will act with the advice of a Selection Committee, including at least one eminent representative of the Engineering profession.

2. Applications for the appointments must be made on a printed form to be obtained from the Secretary, Public Works Department, India Office, Whitehall, London, S.W., and to be returned so as to reach him not earlier than 1st February 1917,* and not later than Saturday, the 31st March 1917.

3. Candidates must have attained the age of 21 and not attained the age of 24 years on the 1st July 1917. To this rule no exception can be made, save as provided in Appendix III.

[N.B.—Natives of India must obtain a certificate of age and nationality in the form explained in Appendix II. As the production of this certificate is a necessary condition of appointment, intending candidates are advised to procure it without delay. The certificate should be forwarded to the India Office together with the candidate's form of application or at the earliest subsequent opportunity.]

4. Every candidate, except as provided in Regulation 5, must be a natural-born subject of His Majesty of European descent, and at the time of his birth his father must have been a British subject, either natural-born or naturalised in the United Kingdom. The decision of the Secretary of State in Council whether a candidate satisfies this condition shall be final. A candidate must also be of good moral character and sound bodily health and, in the opinion of the Secretary of State for India in Council, in all respects suitable to hold an appointment in the Indian Public Works Department or State Railway Department.

5. Natives of India who are British subjects, and are not qualified under Regulation 4, are eligible for appointment, and shall be selected to the extent of 10 per cent. of the total number of Assistant Engineers thus recruited, if otherwise duly qualified.

6. Candidates must produce evidence that they have either (1) obtained one of the University degrees mentioned in Appendix I; or (2) passed the A.M.I.C.E. examination; or (3) obtained such other diploma or distinction in Engineering as the Secretary of State may decide to accept in any particular case.

7. It is preferred that candidates should have taken a college course and obtained one of the degrees mentioned in Appendix I. It is advisable that in addition they should have had at least one full year's practical experience of Civil Engineering under a qualified civil engineer at the time when they appear before the Selection Committee. Those whose qualifying diploma has been obtained without a college course should have had a full three years of such practical experience. In the event of any candidate being selected who has not, in the opinion of the Selection Committee, had sufficient practical experience, he may be required to undergo, after arrival in India, such period of probation in charge of works as may be decided upon, and his final appointment will be made dependent upon the result of such probation.

* Applications from candidates not resident in the United Kingdom may be submitted before this date and, since the India Office cannot undertake to correspond with candidates except by letter, such applications should be submitted as early as possible.

8. Candidates must be prepared, if called upon, to attend at the India Office, at their own expense, for a personal interview with the Selection Committee, which will probably take place at the end of April or early in May 1917.

9. They will further be required, before final appointment by the Secretary of State in Council, to appear, at their own expense, before the Medical Board at the India Office for examination as to their physical fitness for service in India.

The Regulations governing the physical examination of candidates for the Public Works and State Railway Departments of the Government of India are given in Appendix VI.

*10. Selected candidates will also be required to satisfy the Secretary of State of their ability to ride.

11. They will on appointment be provided with a free first-class passage to India and they will be expected to proceed thither about the end of September 1917.

Their pay will begin from the date of their landing in India, and, if they so desire, they will be able to obtain an advance of two months' pay, recoverable by monthly instalments of one-third of salary. Of this advance a portion not exceeding one-half may be drawn in England.

12. They will enter the Service as Assistant Engineers, on a salary of Rs. 4,560 a year (equal, at 1*s.* 4*d.* the rupee, to 304*l.* a year).

13. The instruments required by Assistant Engineers are supplied to them in India.

14. Particulars as to pay, pension, &c., are contained in Appendices IV and V.

INDIA OFFICE,
November 1916.

The Selection Committee of 1906 drew attention to the subjects which were held to be of most importance for the Public Works Service, viz.,

Pure Mathematics, including a knowledge of the differential and integral calculus.

Applied Mathematics.

Geometrical and Engineering Drawing.

Surveying and Geodesy.

Strength of Materials and Theory of Structures.

Hydraulics.

Materials used in Construction.

Building Construction.—Wood and metal work, limes and cements, and building with stone, brick and concrete.

Knowledge of the principles of road-making, waterworks, sanitary and railway engineering. (Important.)

* Selected candidates will be examined by the Civil Service Commissioners as to their ability to ride, and will be required to obtain either—

(a) a certificate from the Civil Service Commissioners that they are sufficiently at home in the saddle for the efficient performance of all the duties of the Indian Public Works and State Railway Departments; or (b) a certificate from the Civil Service Commissioners of minimum proficiency in riding.

In the latter case they will be subjected, on their arrival in India, to such further tests in riding as may be prescribed by their Government.

Candidates are warned that the certificate of minimum proficiency in riding, without which they will not be allowed to proceed to India, is only granted to those who can qualify in a series of tests, which includes jumping.

The chief tests will be saddling and bridling; mounting and dismounting; trotting and cantering; riding at a trot without stirrups; riding at a trot with stirrups but without reins, jumping a hedge hurdle about 3 feet in height.

Although the examination will, in the main, be confined to these points, the examiner will not be debarred from applying any other tests which may appear desirable.

APPENDIX V.

PARTICULARS RELATING TO PENSIONS, PROVIDENT FUND, AND LEAVE.

N.B.—This Appendix is compiled from the regulations for the time being, and is subject to alterations from time to time. The full leave and pension rules are contained in the Civil Service Regulations published by the Government of India.]

1. The following is a summary of the principal pension rules applicable to Engineers appointed to the Imperial Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom.

An officer is eligible for a pension on voluntary retirement after completing 20 years' qualifying service or attaining the age of 55 years. If at an earlier date he is compelled to retire from the Service through ill-health not occasioned by irregular or intemperate habits, he becomes eligible for an invalid pension or a gratuity according to the length of his service.

The amount of pension or gratuity is regulated as follows :—

After a service of less than 10 years, an invalid gratuity not exceeding one month's emoluments for each completed year of service.

After a service of not less than 10 years an invalid pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

Years of completed service.	Maximum limit of pension.
	Rs.
10	1,000 a year.
11	1,400 a year.
12	1,800 a year.
13	2,200 a year.
14	2,600 a year.
15 }	3,000 a year.

After a service of not less than 20 years, a retiring pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

Years of completed service.	Maximum limit of pension.
	Rs.
20 to 24	4,000 a year.
25 and above	5,000 a year.

Officers who have shown special energy and efficiency during an effective service of three years in certain appointments may, at the discretion of the Government of India, be allowed an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year, subject to the condition that the officer must not retire voluntarily before the completion of a total qualifying service of 28 years.

Subject to certain prescribed conditions, rupee pensions are now issued at the rate of exchange of 1*s*. 9*d*. the rupee to pensioners residing in countries in which the Indian Government rupee is not legal tender.

2. A general provident fund to which all Civil Engineers entering the Public Works Department in the future will subscribe has been established for all Civil Engineers of the Department on the following basis :—

(1) The contribution is compulsory up to 6¼ per cent., on salaries, with not more than a further 9⅜ per cent. voluntary contributions. Subscriptions on leave of any kind are optional.

(2) Compound interest on such payment is annually credited by Government to each officer subscribing, the rate being at present 4 per cent. per annum.

(3) The sum which thus accumulates to the credit of an officer is his absolute property, subject to the rules of the Fund, and is handed over to him unconditionally on quitting the Service; or, in the event of his death before retirement, to such person or persons as, under the rules of the Fund for the time being in force, may be entitled thereto.

(4) Other forms of life insurance will, however, if they fulfil certain conditions, be accepted in lieu of the contributions in (1).

LEAVE.

3. The following is a summary of the principal regulations relating to the leave admissible to Engineers appointed to the Imperial Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom.

(a) Short Leave.

4. Privilege leave is a holiday which may be granted to the extent of one eleventh part of the time that an officer has been on duty without interruption; and it may be accumulated up to three months, earned by 33 months' duty. During privilege leave the officer retains a lien on his appointment, and receives an allowance equal to the salary which he would receive if he were on duty in the appointment on which he as a lien. An interval of not less than six months must elapse between two periods of absence on privilege leave.

Privilege leave may be prefixed to furlough, special leave, or extraordinary leave without allowances. The whole period of leave thus taken in combination is known as combined leave. Combined leave cannot be granted for a shorter period than six months, nor, except on medical certificate, may it be extended beyond two years.

5. Extraordinary leave without allowances may be granted in case of necessity, and, except in certain specified cases, only when no other kind of leave is by rule admissible. It may be granted in continuation of other leave.

6. Subsidiary leave in India for a minimum of ten days, usually with half average salary, may be granted to an officer proceeding on or returning from leave out of India, or on retirement, to enable him to reach the port of embarkation or to rejoin his appointment. It is admissible only at the end, and not at the beginning, of combined leave.

7. Short leave is also granted to enable officers to appear at examinations, &c.

(b) Long Leave.

8. Furlough and special leave with allowances (see paragraph 10) are admissible to an aggregate maximum amount of six years during an officer's service. The amount of furlough "earned" is one-fourth of an officer's active service, and the amount "due" is that amount less any enjoyed.

Furlough without medical certificate can, if due, be generally taken after eight years' active service, and again after intervals of not less than three years' continuous service. It is limited to two years at a time.

Furlough on medical certificate may be granted (a) to an officer who has rendered three years' continuous service, for not more than two years, but capable of extension up to three years, and (b) to an officer who has not rendered three years' continuous service, up to one year in any case, and up to such longer period, if any (but not exceeding two years), as the officer may have furlough "due" to him.

9. The allowances admissible during furlough are :—

(1) During the first two years of furlough without medical certificate and during so much of furlough with medical certificate as may be "due"—half average salary subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

(2) After the expiration of the period for which the foregoing allowances are admissible,—one quarter of average salary, subject to certain maximum or minimum limits.

10. Special leave may be granted at any time for not more than six months, with intervals of six years' service; allowances, calculated as during furlough, are given during the first six months only, whether taken in one or more instalments.

General Rules.

11. Leave of absence, whether on furlough or on privilege leave, can never be claimed as of right, and is given or refused at the discretion of Government.

12. After five years' continuous absence from India, an officer is considered to be out of the employment of Government.

13. When leave allowances other than privilege leave pay are paid at the Home Treasury, or in a Colony where the standard of currency is gold, rupees are converted into sterling at the rate of exchange fixed for the time being for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and the Indian Treasuries, unless any other rate has been exceptionally authorised. But for the present the rate of conversion is subject to a minimum of 1*s.* 6*d.* to the rupee. Privilege leave pay when issued from the Home Treasury (this is only admissible when privilege leave is combined with other leave) is converted at 1*s.* 4*d.* to the rupee.

APPENDIX VI.

REGULATIONS AS TO THE PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Note.—These Regulations are published for the convenience of candidates and in order to enable them to ascertain the probability of their coming up to the required physical standard. But it must be clearly understood that the Secretary of State reserves to himself an absolute discretion to reject as unfit any candidate whom he may consider, after hearing the opinion of his medical advisers, to be physically disqualified for the public service; and that his discretion is in no respect limited by these Regulations.

It is not the practice to communicate to candidates who may be reported as physically unfit for service in India the reasons for the Medical Board's opinion.

General Physical Requirements.

1. A candidate must be in good mental and bodily health, and free from any physical defect likely to interfere with efficient performance of duty.

2. In the examination of candidates the Medical Board will apply the following table of correlation of age, height, and chest girth :—

Age.	Height without Shoes.	Chest.
		Girth when expanded.	Range of Expansion.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
21 and upwards . . .	62½ and under 65 . . .	35	2
	65 " 68 . . .	35½	2
	68 " 70 . . .	36	2
	70 " 72 . . .	36½	2½
	72 and upwards . . .	37	2½

3. Measurement of Height.—The candidate will be placed against the standard with his feet together, and the weight thrown on the heels, and not on the toes or otuside of the feet. He will stand erect without rigidity, and with the heels, calves, buttocks, and shoulders touching the standard : the chin will be depressed to bring the vertex of the head level under the horizontal bar, and the height will be noted in parts of an inch to eighths. In the Indian Police Force a minimum height of 5 ft. 4 ins. is required, but in other Departments no fixed limit of height is imposed.

4. Measurement of Chest.—The candidate will be made to stand erect with his feet together, and to raise his hands above his head. The tape will be carefully adjusted round the chest, with its posterior upper edge touching the inferior angles of the shoulder blades and its anterior lower edge the upper part of the nipples. The arms will then be lowered, to hang loosely by the side, and care will be taken that the shoulders are not thrown upwards or backwards so as to displace the tape. The candidate will then be directed to empty his chest of air as much as is possible. This is best done by continuous whistling with the lips as long as sound can be produced. The tape is carefully gathered in during the process, and when the minimum measurement is reached it is recorded. The candidate will then be directed to inflate his chest to its utmost capacity. This maximum measurement will likewise be noted. The girth with the chest fully expanded and the range of expansion between the minimum and the maximum will then be recorded.

5. The hearing must be good.

6. The speech without impediment.

7. The teeth in good order, i.e., decayed or broken teeth must be properly stopped or crowned, and deficient teeth replaced by artificial teeth where necessary for effective mastication.

8. The chest must be well formed, the lungs and heart sound.

9. Rupture, hydrocle, varicocele, varicose veins in a severe degree, or other condition likely to cause inefficiency will disqualify a candidate, unless such condition is cured by operation.

10. The limbs, feet, and toes must be well formed and developed, with free and perfect motion of all the joints.

11. A candidate must have no congenital malformation or defect likely to interfere with efficiency.

12. A candidate must not be the subject of chronic skin disease.

13. Evidence of previous acute or chronic disease pointing to an impaired constitution will disqualify.

14. The Regulations as to the standard of vision required are shown separately for each department. In all cases of "colour blindness" a note of the same will be made on the candidate's papers.

Candidates may, if they wish it, undergo a preliminary examination by the Medical Board, which meets at the India Office every Tuesday, under the following conditions :—

(a) Applications must be addressed to the Under Secretary of State, India Office, Whitehall, London, accompanied by a fee of two guineas, and a statement as to the particular appointment which the candidate desires to obtain.

(b) Candidates must pay their travelling expenses.

(c) Candidates considered to be unfit by the Medical Board at this preliminary examination are not bound to accept its opinion, but may, at their own risk, continue their studies, with the knowledge that they will have to submit themselves for a final medical examination by the Medical Board, prior to the examination, or to their appointment.

(d) On the other hand, it must be distinctly understood that the preliminary examination by the Medical Board is held solely for the candidate's information, and that, if after that examination he is reported to be apparently fit, he has not on that account any claim to be accepted as physically fit when he presents himself for the final Medical Examination, upon which alone his acceptance or rejection will depend. Candidates may be considered fit for the Service at the preliminary examination, but may be found at the final examination to be unfit, either on account of some physical defect which did not exist or passed undetected at the preliminary examination, or for other reasons.

REGULATIONS AS TO THE STANDARD OF VISION.

1. If myopia in one or both eyes exists, a candidate may be passed provided the ametropia does not exceed 3·5 D, and if, with correcting glasses not exceeding 3·5 D, the acuteness of vision in one eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ and in the other $\frac{6}{9}$, there being normal range of accommodation with the glasses.

2. Myopic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate, provided the lens, or the combined spherical and cylindrical lenses, required to correct the error of refraction, does not exceed 3·5 D; the acuteness of vision in one eye, when corrected, being equal to $\frac{6}{9}$, and in the other $\frac{6}{6}$, together with normal range of accommodation with the correcting glasses, there being no evidence of progressive disease in the choroid or retina.

3. A candidate having total hypermetropia not exceeding 4 D is not disqualified, provided the sight in one eye (when under the influence of atropine) equals $\frac{6}{9}$, and in the other eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$, with + 4 D glasses, or any lower power.

4. Hypermetropic astigmatism does not disqualify, provided the lens or combined lenses required to cover the error of refraction do not exceed 4 D, and that the sight of one eye equals $\frac{6}{9}$, and the other $\frac{6}{6}$, with or without such lens or lenses.

5. A candidate having a defect of vision arising from nebula of the cornea is disqualified if the sight of one eye be less than $\frac{6}{12}$. In such a case the better eye must be emmetropic. Defects of vision arising from pathological or other changes in the deeper structures of either eye, which are not referred to in these rules, may exclude a candidate.

6. Squint or any morbid condition, subject to the risk of aggravation or recurrene, in either eye, may cause the rejection of a candidate. Any imperfection of the colour sense is a disqualification for appointment to the engineering branch of the Railway Department. In other cases the existence of imperfection of colour sense will be noted on the candidate's papers.

FOR ALL APPOINTMENTS UNDER THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT A DECLARATION, AS FOLLOWS, IS REQUIRED FROM CANDIDATES.

KING'S POLICE MEDAL.

NOTIFICATION.

(POLICE.)

Delhi, the 13th February 1917.

No. 708-C.—His Majesty the KING, EMPEROR OF INDIA, has been pleased to confer the King's Police Medal on the following officers and men of the Indian Police establishments:—

PUNJAB.

Name of officer and rank.	Statement of services for which in particular the decoration has been conferred.
23 Mr. Duncan Donald, Superintendent of Police.	Mr. Duncan Donald joined the Burma Police as an Inspector, "A" list in December 1888. While serving in Burma he brought himself prominently to notice in encounters with dakaits in the Ye-U District, and in the Burma Police Administration Report, 1889, the following passages occur:— "Mr. Duncan Donald, Inspector of Police, deserves special mention for the conspicuous part taken by him in the settlement of this district.........."

Name of officer and rank.	Statement of services for which in particular the decoration has been conferred.
	"I must not, however, omit to mention the good work done by Mr. Inspector Donald. This young officer in the month of April got into and engaged dakaits no less than five times with the result that 25 dakaits were killed (six of whom were leaders), and several arms and a quantity of ammunition were recovered."
	Mr. Donald was transferred to the Punjab in 1901 and in this province has shown himself possessed of considerable detective ability and intimate knowledge of the people. In the suppression of the recent returned emigrant revolutionary movement which came into existence towards the end of 1914 Mr. Donald as Superintendent of Police, Ludhiana, rendered valuable services.
24 Mr. Frederick Charles Isemonger, Superintendent of Police.	Mr. Frederick Charles Isemonger joined the Police Department in 1898 and has a uniform record of good work to his credit. He was specially selected for duty with His Excellency the Viceroy's camp in the Delhi Durbar of 1903 and received His Excellency's special thanks for his work on that occasion. He again served with distinction as Assistant Traffic Officer at the Delhi Durbar in 1911, and subsequently at Calcutta during His Majesty's visit to the Presidency Town. For his good work on this occasion he was commanded to appear before His Majesty. During the politically troublous years of 1907-08, Mr. Isemonger was in charge of the Special Branch, and his services during this period were commended by the Government of the Punjab. In 1913-14 Mr. Isemonger served with distinction in the Government of India, Criminal Intelligence Department, and towards the end of 1914 was specially selected for the Provincial Criminal Investigation Department, where up to the present time he has done much good work in connection with the revolutionary emigrant movement. In his present capacity the generally disturbed political situation has thrown an extra burden of work of a highly responsible nature upon Mr. Isemonger with which he has coped most successfully.
	Mr. Isemonger also performed an act of great bravery while in charge of the Sialkot District in the year 1910. In July of that year one Dulu Singh, a sepoy on leave, ran amuck, murdered three persons of his village, set fire to their houses, terrorised villagers, took up a position on the roof of his house with a chavvi (axe) and defied arrest. The local police, tahsildar and villagers subsequently came to the spot, but shrank from tackling him. This was the state of affairs on the third day when Mr. Isemonger, having heard of the incident, arrived at the village and walked straight up to the desperate man, who at once surrendered.
25 Mr. Colin Andrew Macpherson, Superintendent of Police.	Cattle thieving had been rife in the Karnál District for many years when, at the end of 1911, Mr. Macpherson took over the duties of Superintendent of Police. He realised that the time had come for a vigorous campaign against the large and well organised gangs infesting that and the neighbouring districts. After careful and intelligent preliminary enquiries

	Mr. Macpherson started operations and, finally, put a series of gang cases into the courts, with the result that a large number of the leading cattle thieves and their associates were convicted and sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. These proceedings had an immediate effect, and for the time being practically put a stop to cattle thieving not only in the Karnal District, but also in the United Provinces and in certain Native States. In these enquiries Mr. Macpherson showed marked administrative efficiency in dealing with a serious state of crime.
26 Mohammad Sadiq, head constable of the Ferozepore District Police	Mohammad Sadiq joined the police force of the Ferozepore District as a constable in 1900 and, by good work, rose to the position of head constable in 1911. On the 27th November 1914 a gang of returned emigrant revolutionaries, on their way to loot the sub-treasury at Moga, shot down and killed the local Sub-Inspector of Police and a Zaildar who attempted to stop and question them. The gang then made off in the direction of a canal. News having been conveyed to head constable Mohammad Sadiq, who was present at a neighbouring canal bungalow, that officer collected a party and started off at once in pursuit of the assassins. He came up with his quarry as a party of nine of them were attempting to cross the canal, and although armed with smooth bore muskets only, the head constable and his men immediately attacked. The revolutionaries, although armed with modern fire arms, were successfully headed off and driven into a patch of long reeds. Mohammad Sadiq and his small force, with the aid of villagers, then surrounded and fired the reeds, and after a stiff fight succeeded in killing two of the revolutionaries and capturing seven others. The members of the Lahore Special Tribunal, in their judgment of the 9th February 1916, expressed their appreciation of the courage displayed by the head constable.
27 Ganda Singh, foot constable.	Ganda Singh enlisted as a foot constable in the Amritsar Police in 1900. On the the 12th June 1914 the military guard over the Manawala Railway Bridge near Amritsar was rushed by a gang of six Sikh revolutionaries. Killing the sentry and havildar and wounding four sepoys, the miscreants took possession of six service rifles and over 200 rounds of ammunition. They then started off in the direction of Tarn Taran. Hearing of the presence of this dangerous gang in the vicinity, the Tarn Taran Police turned out with villagers, and, although only armed with smooth bore weapons, maintained a running fight with the revolutionaries throughout a blazing June day for fifteen miles up to the Goindwál ferry on the Beas river, which the latter crossed in a boat after killing the boatman. The police followed in another boat, and, pressing on for another five miles, came up again with the dakaits at nightfall in a grove of trees in the Kapurthala State. Here the dakaits volleyed the police party, one of whom, a villager, was wounded. By this time, however, the ruffians had been run to a standstill, and realizing that the police would not give up the chase buried their rifles and slipped away one by one under cover of the darkness. Later on four of the dakaits were arrested by the Kapurthala Police through

As remarked by the Deputy Commissioner of Amritsar, in a report on the subject, "it was the vigorous chase by the Amritsar Police that ran the dakaits to earth." The whole pursuit party, police officers and villagers, showed great pluck and perseverance, but Ganda Singh was most prominent in the firing line and exposed himself freely in conveying information and orders between the different pursuing detachments.

This officer entered the Punjab Police as a Sub-Inspector in 1906, and in his ten years' service has earned special commendation on no less than 24 occasions for important services connected with the detection of crime and the arrest of offenders. He has rendered very valuable services in the detection of two important cases

EDUCATION.

Delhi, the 19th February 1917.

No. 157.—The following preliminary announcement regarding the School of Oriental Studies, London, is published for general information :—

SCHOOL OF ORIENTAL STUDIES.

LONDON INSTITUTION.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

Date of Opening of Classes.

The Classes of the School will begin on Thursday, January 18, 1917. Intending students should apply at the School, either personally or by writing, to the Director. The Director will be glad to see students between the hours of 11 and 1 daily, and at other times by appointment.

Origin and Scope of the School.

The School was established by Royal Charter in June, 1916. Its purposes (as set out in the Charter) "are to be a School of Oriental Studies in the University of London to give instruction in the languages of Eastern and African peoples, Ancient and Modern, and in the Literature, History, Religion and Customs of those peoples, especially with a view to the needs of persons about to proceed to the East or to Africa for the pursuit of study and research, commerce or a profession, and to do all or any of such other things as the Governing Body of the School consider conducive or incidental thereto, having regard to the provision for those purposes which already exists elsewhere, and in particular to the co-ordination of the work of the School with that of similar institutions both in this country and in our Eastern and African Dominions and with the work of the University of London and its other Schools."

The School has been created as the outcome of the Reports of two Government Committees, the first a Treasury Departmental Committee presided over by Lord Reay, the second an India Office Departmental Committee presided over by Lord Cromer. The School is intended to provide London with a centre for Oriental teaching adequate to the needs of the Metropolis and of the Empire, and one that will remove the reproach that London has hitherto been without an Oriental School comparable to those of Paris, Berlin and Petrograd.

Lord Reay's Committee recommended that the School should "be built up from the nucleus of Oriental teaching now existing at University and King's Colleges." Oriental teaching has been carried on at the two Colleges, both now incorporated in the University of London, since, or almost since, their foundation, and though the teaching has been on a restricted scale many distinguished Orientalists have taken part in it. The Senate of the University of London have now assented to the transfer to the School of the teachers in the Oriental Departments of the Colleges, excluding certain subjects, such as Egyptology, Assyriology and Hebrew, and nearly the whole of the Oriental Staffs of the Colleges have been transferred to the School under this arrangement.

The Governing Body hope also to co-operate with the great Oriental Schools at Oxford and Cambridge and elsewhere.

Buildings.

The School is in Finsbury Circus, within two minutes' walk from the termini of the Great Eastern, North London, and Central London Railways, within the same distance from Moorgate Street and Bishopsgate Street stations on the Metropolitan Railway, and about six minutes' walk from the Bank of England. The School occupies a building which formerly belonged to the London Institution (founded in 1807), which, with the consent of the proprietors of the Institution, was transferred to the Commissioners of Works for the purposes of the School under the London Institution (Transfer) Act of 1912. The old building has been considerably altered and adapted internally to suit its new purposes, and a new wing has been built on to it which contains seventeen well-lighted classrooms. The cost of the alterations and additions has been about £25,000, provided by a special Parliamentary grant. There is a large Library, 98 ft. by 42 ft. and 28 ft. in height, and a Lecture Theatre accommodating about 500 persons. There are also Commonrooms for the Staff and for both men and women students.

The Classrooms are of two kinds : Classrooms for Lectures, and Study-classrooms, where students will be able to study with the aid of departmental libraries, and where one or other of the Lecturers will be in frequent attendance to assist in their studies.

Curriculum and Staff.

The School will at the outset provide teaching in seven groups of languages, comprising 20 languages in all, enumerated below ; but it is hoped at an early date to extend the scope of the School considerably, and students desiring instruction in any Oriental language for which provision has not been made should make application to the Director. In a considerable proportion of the spoken languages instruction will be given by teachers belonging to the country where the languages in question are spoken. It will be the aim of the School to provide as far as possible both English and Native Lecturers in the principal languages included in the curriculum.

Courses on the History, Religions and Customs of Oriental and African countries will form a special feature in the teaching of the School. Special Inter-collegiate arrangements with the London School of Economics will be made for instruction in the Sociology and Anthropology of the less civilised races. Inter-collegiate arrangements will also be made with University College for instruction in Phonetics ; and modern phonetic methods will be used to facilitate the acquirement of correct pronunciation. Elementary practical courses will be provided in all the living languages taught.

Courses will be arranged for the Pass, Honours, and Higher Degrees in Oriental Languages of the University of London.

Facilities will be provided for linguistic and literary research in the subjects of the curriculum, and special arrangements will be made for advanced students who do not desire to follow regular courses (see under Fees below).

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

(EMIGRATION).

RESOLUTION.

INDENTURED EMIGRATION TO THE COLONIES.

Delhi, the 24th February 1917.

The following papers are published for the information of those interested in the subject:—

India Office, London,

11th February 1917.

Public,

No. 24.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

I have considered in Council the letters of Your Excellency's Government in the Commerce and Industry Department, No. 41 (Emigration), dated the 15th October last, and No. 53, dated the 3rd December last, on the subject of indentured emigration to the Colonies.

2. The recommendation which you have made for the abolition of the indentured system is one for which I had not been prepared by perusal of the correspondence that followed the report of the Sanderson Committee, while the suggestions made by Messrs. McNeill and Chimman Lal as a result of their enquiries in the Colonies concerned promised to lead to a reform of certain important defects in the present system. Fiji has already abolished the more severe of the penal contract provisions, and I have some reason to anticipate that the West Indian Colonies are prepared to follow. The methods of recruiting adopted in India are admittedly unsatisfactory, but I was in hope that they would be found by your Government to be susceptible of improvement.

3. The growing feeling in India against the system of indentured labour must be accepted as a fact, and there would be little profit in discussing how far the popular movement is due to some confusion between the Dominions that exclude free Indian immigrants and the Colonies that still import Indian indentured labour. Such confusion is excusable in view of the history of the Indian question in Natal, but it is necessary to remark that the attitude of Canada and Australia towards free Indian immigration is due to deeper causes than the existence of indentured labour in the West Indies and Fiji, and will not be affected by the discontinuance of the system.

4. I am, however, entirely prepared to accept the policy advocated by Your Excellency's Government, and will invite the Colonial Office to co-operate with me in devising the most suitable means for giving effect to it with due consideration of the interests of the Colonies affected, and with adequate safeguards for the protection and well-being of immigrants under the new system, which you suggest should take the place of indentured labour. The result of this reference will be communicated to you in due course.

5. I agree with you that the mere abolition of indentured emigration will not be sufficient, and that the change should not be made until a satisfactory scheme of recruitment on other lines has been worked out. The Colonies which depend on Indian labour will desire to attract immigrants, and the problem of securing as far as possible the welfare of the labourers who leave India would not be solved by a formal transference of the direct responsibility now vested in Your Excellency's Government. While the restrictions of freedom involved by the indenture system seem to have a direct bearing upon the ratio on suicides, the question of sexual immorality is quite distinct, connected as it is with the disproportion of the sexes and the action of recruiters in collecting women of an undesirable type. The idea that the abolition of indentures would of itself produce amelioration in this respect is not shared by Your Excellency's Government, who are aware that there is no evidence for the vague belief sometimes expressed that the status of indentured women exposes them to ill-treatment. The question of the condition of free emigrants in countries over-seas has, very rightly, aroused to a steadily increasing degree the attention of public men in India, and, unless free emigration is to be prohibited—an idea that would not commend itself to the critics of indentured emigration—the problems upon which you have touched will remain, and cannot be a matter of indifference. It was after the abolition of indentured emigration to Natal that developments connected to a large extent with the general position of Indians in South Africa and the status of time-expired indentured labourers in Natal gave rise to the recent demonstration of Indian feeling.

6. The abolition of the penal contract at the place of recruiting gives scope for more than one system of labour. In Assam, for example, I understand that "Act XIII agreements" are still common. In the Federated Malay States, since the abolition of indentured immigration, a somewhat different system is in force. I am not at present sure that the scheme outlined in the 17th paragraph of your letter of the 15th October is entirely practicable, and I shall be glad to learn whether in the opinion of Your Excellency's Government the introduction of arrangements similar to those in force in regard to emigration to the Federated Malay States would satisfy Indian public opinion and at the same time provide sufficient safeguards for the welfare of the emigrants.

7. It is essential to bear in mind the elaborate provisions made by the Colonial Governments under the present system for the protection of indentured labourers, and while free immigrants in unfamiliar surroundings will stand in need of similar safeguards, the Colonies can hardly be expected to maintain their present arrangements unless they have some security that no obstacles are placed in the way of intending emigrants, and that these can be counted upon to fulfil the obligations into which they enter. While it is for the Colonial Governments to devise an acceptable substitute for the present system, Your Excellency's Government might facilitate their endeavours by stating your requirements in greater detail.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN.

No. 2581-S.—The following Order in Council is published for general information, in continuation of the Notification in this Department, No. 4676, dated the 24th April 1915 :—

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 10th day of January 1917.

PRESENT :

THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS on the 11th day of March 1915, an Order was issued by His Majesty in Council directing that all ships which sailed from their ports of departure after the 1st day of March 1915, might be required to discharge in a British or Allied port goods which were of enemy origin or of enemy destination or which were enemy property :

And whereas such Order in Council was consequent upon certain Orders issued by the German Government purporting to declare, in violation of the usages of war, the waters surrounding the United Kingdom a military area, in which all British and Allied merchant vessels would be destroyed, irrespective of the lives of passengers and crew, and in which neutral shipping would be exposed to similar danger, in view of the uncertainties of naval warfare :

And whereas the sinking of British, Allied, and neutral merchant ships, irrespective of the lives of passengers and crews, and in violation of the usages of war, has not been confined to the waters surrounding the United Kingdom, but has taken place in a large portion of the area of naval operations :

And whereas such illegal acts have been committed not only by German warships but by warships flying the flag of each of the enemy countries :

And whereas on account of the extension of the scope of the illegal operations carried out under the said German Orders, and in retaliation therefor, vessels have been required under the provisions of the Orders in Council aforementioned to discharge in a British or Allied port goods which were of enemy origin or of enemy destination or which were enemy property, irrespective of the enemy country from or to which such goods were going or of the enemy country in which was domiciled the person whose property they were :

And whereas doubts have arisen as to whether the term "enemy" in articles 3 and 4 of the said Order in Council includes enemy countries other than Germany.

Now, THEREFORE, His Majesty is pleased by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. In articles 3 and 4 of the said Order in Council of the 11th March, 1915, aforementioned, the terms "enemy destination" and "enemy origin" shall be deemed to apply and shall apply to goods destined for or originating in any enemy country and the term "enemy property" shall be deemed to apply and shall apply to goods belonging to any person domiciled in any enemy country.

2. Effect shall be given to this Order in the application of the said Order in Council, of the 11th March, 1915, to goods which previous to the date of this Order have been discharged at a British or Allied port, being goods of destination or origin or property which was enemy though not German, and all such goods shall be detained and dealt with in all respects as is provided in the said Order in Council of the 11th March, 1915.

No. 3453-S.—The following Order in Council is published for general information, in continuation of the notification in this Department, No. 2581-S., dated the 3rd March 1917 :—

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 16th day of February 1917.

PRESENT :

The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS by an Order in Council dated the 11th day of March 1915, His Majesty was pleased to direct certain measures to be taken against the commerce of the enemy :

AND WHEREAS the German Government has now issued a memorandum declaring that from the 1st February, 1917, all sea traffic will be prevented in certain zones therein described adjacent to Great Britain and France and Italy, and that neutral ships will navigate the said zones at their own risk :

AND WHEREAS similar directions have been given by other enemy Powers :

AND WHEREAS the orders embodied in the said memorandum are in flagrant contradiction with the rules of international law, the dictates of humanity, and the treaty obligations of the enemy :

AND WHEREAS such proceedings on the part of the enemy render it necessary for His Majesty to adopt further measures in order to maintain the efficiency of those previously taken to prevent commodities of any kind from reaching or leaving the enemy countries, and for this purpose to subject to capture and condemnation vessels carrying goods with an enemy destination or of enemy origin unless they afford unto the forces of His Majesty and his Allies ample opportunities of examining their cargoes, and also to subject such goods to condemnation :

His Majesty is therefore pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the following directions shall be observed in respect of all vessels which sail from their port of departure after the date of this Order :—

1. A vessel which is encountered at sea on her way to or from a port in any neutral country affording means of access to the enemy territory without calling at a port in British or Allied territory shall, until the contrary is established, be deemed to be carrying goods with an enemy destination, or of enemy origin, and shall be brought in for examination, and, if necessary, for adjudication before the Prize Court.

2. Any vessel carrying goods with an enemy destination, or of enemy origin shall be liable to capture and condemnation in respect of the carriage of such goods ; provided that, in the case of any vessel which calls at an appointed British or Allied port for the examination of her cargo, no sentence of condemnation shall be pronounced in respect only of the carriage of goods of enemy origin or destination, and no such presumption as is laid down in article 1 shall arise.

3. Goods which are found on the examination of any vessel to be goods of enemy origin or of enemy destination shall be liable to condemnation.

4. Nothing in this order shall be deemed to affect the liability of any vessel or goods to capture or condemnation independently of this Order.

5. This Order is supplemental to the orders in Council of the 11th day of March 1915, and the 10th day of January 1917, for restricting the commerce of the enemy.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

ACCOUNTS & FINANCE.
Public Debt.

No. 745-F.

Simla, the 6th April, 1917.

THE Government of India are assured that their officers of all grades will wish to support the Indian War Loan and to apply their savings for as long a period as possible to investment in the Loan. The ordinary procedure for subscribing to the various sections of the Loan is described in the Finance Department's Notification No. 380-F., dated the 1st March 1917, from which it will be seen that Post Office 5-year Cash Certificates offer full facilities for the utilisation of savings throughout the coming year up to a maximum amount of Rs. 7,500 by any one person, and that it is also possible to distribute subscriptions to War Loan 1929-1947 and War Bonds over the seven months from March 15th to October 15th, 1917. Government, however, believe that many officers will welcome an arrangement which will enable them to subscribe to the War Loan by monthly deductions from their pay, and that this will be a practical encouragement to the setting aside of money for subscription to the War Loan throughout the coming year.

2. They have accordingly obtained the Secretary of State's approval to the scheme described in Appendix A to this Notification. This scheme is applicable to all Government officers: it enables any Government officer to obtain War Loan 1929-1947, War Bonds 1920 and War Bonds 1922 by payment of the amount applied for in ten instalments to be deducted from his pay. It also enables Cash Certificates to be obtained by deduction from pay.

3. There may, however, be officers who feel that by a prolongation of the period of repayment they will be enabled to take up a larger amount of the Indian War Loan, while, also, there may be Government servants who are unable to afford so large a monthly deduction as Rs. 10. To meet such cases, the Bank of Bengal have offered to make available to Government servants serving in the marginally noted Provinces the facilities which they have announced that they will place at the disposal of approved borrowers to enable them to contribute to the Indian War Loan. The Government of India have much pleasure in placing on record their appreciation of this public spirited offer of the Bank of Bengal, and they have decided to co-operate with the Bank of Bengal by arranging, on a request from the officer concerned, to deduct from the latter's pay, and pay to the Bank of Bengal, the amount due each month for the repayment to the Bank of the advance. This scheme will be alternative, and not in addition, to the scheme described in the preceding paragraph, and an officer will not be permitted to subscribe under both schemes. The terms of the scheme of the Bank of Bengal are set out in Appendix B.

(1) Bengal,
(2) Bihar and Orissa.
(3) The Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province.
(4) The Central Provinces.
(5) Burma.

4. The Bank of Bengal's scheme is for the present open only to officers serving in the Presidency of Bengal and the Provinces mentioned above. The possibility of applying a similar scheme to Government servants serving in the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras is under examination.

Secretary to the Government of India.

PUBLIC DEBT.

Simla, the 20th April 1917.

No. 868-F.—In their Finance Department's Notification No. 745-F., dated the 6th of April 1917, the Government of India published the details of two schemes which had been devised to assist Government servants in subscribing to the Indian War Loan by means of monthly deductions from their pay. The first scheme, which enables the monthly payments to be spread over 10 months, was made available to all Government servants throughout India: but the second scheme, in which advantage was taken of an offer of the Bank of Bengal to prolong the period of payment to two years, was at the outset confined to officers serving in the Bengal Presidency and in certain other Provinces in which the Bank of Bengal operates. The Government of India have now much pleasure in announcing that the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Madras have agreed to make available to Government servants employed in the marginally* noted areas the same facilities for subscribing to the War Loan by means of 24 monthly deductions from their pay as are afforded by the Bank of Bengal's scheme. Accordingly the Government of India, on a request from an officer, who desires to subscribe in this way to the Indian War Loan will deduct from his pay and pay to the Bank the amount due each month for repayment of the *Bank of Bombay—Bombay Presidency, Sind and Berar.

Bank of Madras—Madras Presidency.

Bank's advance. The terms on which advances will be made by the Banks of Bombay and Madras are in all respects similar to those of the Bank of Bengal scheme, as described in Appendix B to the notification of the 6th of April 1917 : and, as stated in paragraph 3 of that notification the scheme will be alternative and not in addition to the Government scheme described in Appendix A.

2. It is also notified that the Bank of Bengal scheme is applicable to officers serving in the United Provinces, Assam and Delhi in addition to the Provinces noted in the margin of paragraph of the notification of the 6th of April.

INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE.

RESOLUTION.

No. 777.—The Government of India have noted with concern the disappointing response which has been made to the opportunity afforded to the people of India of enrolling themselves for service in the Indian Defence Force; and since they have also observed, in the press and elsewhere, that the conditions of that service have been a good deal criticized, they deem it advisable to recapitulate briefly the circumstances in which the scheme was initiated, and to explain the necessity of the conditions which at present apply to it.

Owing to the prolongation of the war, and the enforcement of universal military service in England, it was thought desirable to impose some obligation of a similar nature upon every European British subject of military age in India. Under these circumstances, though there was no necessity for a corresponding measure applicable to Indian subjects of His Majesty, the Governor-General in Council was anxious that the opportunity should be afforded to Indians also to enrol themselves in the Indian Defence Force. He was aware that there had for long been a desire that volunteering should be thrown open to Indian as well as to European British subjects, and was assured that, if that opportun-could be afforded to them, a ready and enthusiastic response would be made. Since, with the passing of the Indian Defence Force Act, volunteering on the old basis practically ceased to exist, it was proposed to provide other means by which Indians could come forward and offer their services for the defence of India as a part of the general military organisation of the country, and this proposal was accepted by the Indian Legislative Council and embodied in the Act.

(a) If so the person should be asked to produce his discharge certificate.

It should be obvious that, during the progress of the greatest war in history, it was not possible to reorganize or modify radically the general conditions governing the military service of the country, and that any endeavour to do so might only result in deferring the day of final victory to which India, in common with the rest of His Majesty's Dominions, is so earnestly looking forward. It has, therefore, been a source of keen disappointment to the Governor-General in Council to observe, from utterances on the public platform and in the Press, that the conditions of service in the Defence Force, which are the same as those applying to His Majesty's Indian forces in the regular army, have been represented as being such as to deter volunteers from coming forward for the defence of their country.

The leaders of Indian opinion are doubtless aware that the pay of the Territorial force in England was the same as that of the regular army, and that men of position and means in the United Kingdom, and even in distant parts of the Empire, did not think it derogatory to join the ranks both of the Territorials and of the new army and to serve as private soldiers shoulder to shoulder with those of other classes; and many of them have given their lives in such service in France and elsewhere during the present war. They asked no questions as to pay or other conditions; they put forward no pretensions or demands; their one ambition was to serve their country in her hour of need, and their memories will ever be honoured by the nations in whose defence they fought.

The Governor-General in Council was assured that a similar ambition prevailed in India, and that it was only necessary to throw open the ranks of the Defence Force to Indians to secure a hearty response. At a time when military organizations are strained to the uttermost, it was not possible to provide for the training of an indefinite number of small units all over the country on such a scale as to place a newly-constituted force of this character upon an efficient basis. Endeavour was, however, made to afford such facilities as were possible to those who were anxious to enrol themselves in the service of their country, and arrangements were made in the first instance for recruiting six battalions of a thousand men each at convenient centres. It was fully anticipated that further expansion might be required as the movement developed, but it was thought that a reasonable commencement might be made on these lines, and the military authorities were satisfied that this was all that they could undertake at the outset. It is, therefore, a matter of disappointment to the Government of India to find that, during the first two months after the passing of the Act, only 300 men have been enrolled in place of the 6,000 for which preparations were made. It is felt that all who take an interest in the Defence Force, and believe in those sentiments of patriotism which have brought it into being, and who have the good name of India at heart, will be disheartened to learn that, out of the six months for which recruiting is open so much time should have elapsed without any adequate response being made.

The Government of India recognize that the conditions of service in the Defence Force may be open to criticism in some respects; but, as has already been stated, it was impossible to recast the existing organization during the continued pressure of a great emergency, and all that could be attempted was to engraft the new force on the great Indian Army which was already in being.

There are, doubtless, particular conditions of service in the Indian Army which may be thought to be unsuitable to men who enrol themselves in the new force, and the Government of India have no hesitation in declaring that considerations of this sort will always be taken into account, and that, so far as is consistent with the maintenance of the necessary standard of discipline, sympathetic treatment will be accorded to all those who come forward voluntarily to serve their country.

The Government of India are also aware of Indian aspirations with reference to commissioned rank. It is, however, perfectly well known that this matter is separately under consideration, and is engaging the earnest and sympathetic attention of Government. The whole framework of the Indian Army is affected by that discussion, and it must be obvious to every thinking man that the enrolment of a purely temporary force constituted on a voluntary basis owing to the emergencies of a great war could not justify the hurried determination of so important and difficult a question, in respect of which the Government of India are not the ultimate arbiters.

In conclusion, the Government of India deem it expedient to draw attention once more to the words of His Excellency the Viceroy in the speech which brought to a close the last meeting of the Indian Legislative Council—

"The Act is confessedly a war measure and, therefore, temporary, but it will prove a most invaluable experiment. We shall have—it is no secret, for he who runs may read—to reorganize our Indian Army after this war, and some form of second line force will probably be required. In the Indian Defence Force, raised temporarily under stress of war, there may lie the germ of such a new second line. Do not ask us at such a moment as this to give answers to problems which will have to be solved at a time when there is more leisure. When that time arrives, then criticize, as you will, the Government in respect of its policy. But, for the moment, I would assure you that all the subjects of your criticism are engaging our most sympathetic consideration, and I would ask your co-operation in making this present scheme a success, but do not let it be marred on the ground that it does not contain all that you would desire."

These words accepted in the spirit in which they were offered by the non-official Members of the Council, and constitute a sufficient pledge of the earnest consideration by Government of the future needs of India. It is not claimed that the present scheme is perfect; it is admittedly in the nature of a makeshift; but it is the best that could be devised in the conditions obtaining at the moment, and it has great possibilities. That such a scheme, conceived in the general interests of Imperial defence, should, in spite of its modest dimensions, prove a hopeless failure at such a time and in a country which, whatever its deficiencies, is not lacking in man power, can hardly fail to create an impression throughout the Empire prejudicial to the good name of India. It is, therefore, the sincere hope of the Governor-General in Council that the leaders of public opinion in this country will realize their full responsibilities in this matter, and take all possible steps forthwith to make the recruitment of these Indian units worthy of the name and aspirations of India.

CANTONMENTS.

REGULATIONS.

No. 834.—In pursuance of section 26-A of the Cantonment Code, 1912, as subsequently amended, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the conditions subject to which a Cantonment authority may establish and maintain a Provident Fund :—

1. These rules may be called the Cantonment Provident Fund Rules, 1917.

2. In these rules unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context :—

(a) " Salary " includes all fixed monthly allowances by way of pay or personal allowances, paid from Cantonment funds, but does not include allowances granted to meet specific expenditure, such as travelling, horse, conveyance, or house rent allowances, whether daily, monthly, or yearly ;

(b) " Servant " includes every whole-time employee of, and holding a substantive office under, a Cantonment authority, whether in receipt of a pension from public revenues or not, but does not include any servant who may be serving in a post which is pensionable from public revenues.

(c) " Depositor " means a servant on whose behalf a deposit is made under these rules.

(d) " Interest " means the interest which is paid on a deposit at a Government Savings Bank under the rules in force for such institutions.

Explanations.—An employee on probation in a substantive appointment will not be considered a servant for the purpose of these rules until he is confirmed, but on confirmation he may allowed to subscribe to the fund with effect from the commencement of his probationary service.

3. Every servant appointed or promoted by the Cantonment authority on or after the date from which these rules come into effect in the Cantonment, to an office of which the salary is not less than Rs. 10 per mensem, shall be required to subscribe at the rate of 6¼ per cent., or one anna in the rupee, on his salary to a Provident Fund of which an account will be opened at the Post Office Savings Bank. A servant appointed or promoted previous to the coming into effect of these rules, to an office of which the salary is not less than Rs. 10 per mensem, may be permitted by the Cantonment authority to subscribe to the fund. The deduction shall be made by the Cantonment authority upon every salary bill presented, and shall be credited at once to the fund. In making this deduction, fractions of a rupee of salary should be omitted.

At the time of the deposit each depositor shall furnish a certificate of heirship, giving the name and address of the person or persons to whom he assigns his deposit in the case of his decease.

4. The Cantonment authority shall make a contribution to the deposit account of each depositor, equal to one-half of the amount of the deduction made from his salary under the preceding rule. Such contribution shall be credited to the fund, month by month, in favour of such servant, together with the deduction from his salary. The contribution will be charged in the Cantonment accounts to " 10—Superannuation," sub-head " Provident Fund."

Provided that, in addition to the contribution made under this rule, the Cantonment authority may, if it deems fit, make further contributions to be credited to the Provident Fund in favour of any servant as follows :—

After 10	years'	approved	service,	2	months' pay.
„ 15	„	„	„	3	„
„ 20	„	„	„	3	„
„ 25	„	„	„	4	„
„ 30	„	„	„	4	„

These bonuses are cumulative, that is, a servant who has received a bonus after serving 10 years may, after serving 15 years, receive a second bonus and so on. Though approved service may be reckoned as from the date of commencement of service, no application for a bonus shall be considered unless it is preferred within six months from the date at which the depositor becomes eligible for a bonus. Pay, for the purpose of this rule, means the pay of the applicant on that date.

Provided that, if a servant is transferred to the service of another Cantonment maintaining a Provident Fund, his service in his original post shall count towards service for a bonus.

5. The sums credited monthly under Rules 3 and 4 to the Provident Fund Ledger maintained by the Cantonment authority shall be paid duly into the Post Office Savings Bank. Such payments should, whenever possible, be made into the bank between the 1st and 4th of each month, in order that interest may accrue, and the payment in respect of the further contribution shall be made as soon as possible after the Cantonment authority has sanctioned the same. These deposits may be invested in Government Securities, in accordance with Rule 46 of the " Rules for the guidance of depositors in the Post Office Savings Bank." The deposits may also be invested in Government of India loans.

6. The deposits and contributions, with interest thereon, at the credit of any servant may be withdrawn—

(1) on the decease of the depositor, when the amount shall be paid to his legal heirs;

(2) on his ceasing to be a servant of the Cantonment authority either by resignation or by transfer to Government service, when the amount will be paid to him ;

(3) on his being transferred to the employment of another Cantonment authority, when the amount will be transferred by money order to the Secretary to the Cantonment authority at his new station, for payment into the Post Office Savings Bank.

7. The sum at credit of a depositor is not liable to forfeiture on dismissal or on conviction by a Criminal Court, except for an offence for which the penalty of forfeiture of the whole of the offender's property is prescribed by law.

8. (i) Amounts credited or debited to the Provident Fund shall on the same day be posted in the Provident Fund Ledger. Separate pages of the account shall be set apart for each month's transaction.

If this maximum is exceeded by a Candidate's selection he will be required to indicate one of his subjects, the marks for which should, in his case, be reduced so as to bring his maximum marks within the prescribed limit. The marks so reduced will be subject to a correspondingly reduced deduction.

Moreover, if a Candidate's handwriting is not easily legible a further deduction will, on that account, be made from the total marks otherwise accruing to him.*

6. A list of the competitors shall be made out in order of their proficiency as disclosed by the aggregate marks finally awarded to each competitor, and in that order so many competitors, up to the determined number of appointments, as are found by the Civil Service Commissioners to be qualified by examination, shall be designated to be Selected Candidates for the Indian Civil Service, provided that they appear to be duly qualified in other respects. Should any Selected Candidate become disqualified, the Secretary of State for India will determine whether the vacancy thus created shall be filled or not. In the former case the Candidate next in order of merit, and in other respects duly qualified, shall be deemed to be a Selected Candidate.

The examination will be conducted on paper and vivâ voce, as may be deemed necessary.

If any Candidate is prevented by sickness or any other adequate cause from attending such examination, the Commissioners may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India in Council, allow him to appear at the Final Examination to be held in the following year, or at a special examination.

10. The selected Candidates will also be tested during their probation as to their proficiency in Riding.

The examinations in riding will be held as follows:—

(1) Shortly after the result of the Open Competitive Examination has been declared or at such time or times as the Commissioners may appoint during the course of the probationary year.

(2) Again, at the time of the Final Examination. Candidates who may then satisfy the Commissioners that they are sufficiently at home in the saddle for the efficient performance of all the duties of the Indian Civil Service will be awarded marks ranging between 101 and 200 according to the degree of proficiency displayed, to be added to their marks in the Final Examination. Candidates who fall short of this adequate proficiency but show such minimum proficiency as is evidence that with a moderate amount of practice they can attain full proficiency, will receive marks ranging between 1 and 100; they will be allowed to proceed to India and will on their arrival there be subjected to such further tests in riding as may be prescribed by their Government, and shall receive no increase to their initial salary until they have passed such tests to the satisfaction of that Government.

No person will be admitted to the examination from whom the Secretary to the Civil Service Commissioners has not received on or before the 1st June (or, if that date should fall on a Sunday or public holiday, then, on or before the first day thereafter on which their office is open), in the year in which the Examination is to be held, an application, in the handwriting of the Candidate, on the prescribed form.

APPENDIX.

1. Any person who has joined since the 4th August, 1914, or may join during the present war, the Army or Navy or Royal Marines, or has rendered or may render during the same period actual military service in the Special Reserve or Territorial Force, Royal Naval Reserve or Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, may, if eligible in point of age under the Regulations as they now stand for admission to the examination or competition held in 1915, 1916, or 1917 (but over age in 1916, 1917, or 1918 respectively), deduct from his actual age at the time of the examination or competition held in 1916, 1917, or 1918, as the case may be:—

(a) The actual period of such service, if it has not exceeded three months.

(b) One year, if the actual period of service has exceeded three months. No candidate will be allowed to deduct more than one year from his actual age.

2. The same concession may also be granted to those who have been employed during the same period in connection with the armed forces of the Crown at home or abroad giving their whole time and under obligation to serve for the duration of the war or until their discharge, or for any period not terminable at their own option, provided that their employment be not on ordinary commercial terms, such as that of Assistant Paymasters, Clerks, artisans, and the like.

3. The grant of the concession described in paragraph (2) will be at the discretion of the Civil Service Commissioners, whose decision in each case will be final. Candidates who contemplate applying for an age deduction under (2) will do well to apply to the Civil Service Commission for a ruling on their case.

4. Candidates to be eligible for the concessions in (1) or (2) must furnish an official certificate of the period and satisfactory character of their service and if any doubt arise whether the service of any candidate is of the kind contemplated, the Secretary of State for India in Council reserves to the Civil Service Commissioners the right to decide the case upon its merits.

The Civil Service Commissioners are authorized by the Secretary of State for India in Council to make the following announcements :—

(i) Selected Candidates will be allotted to the various provinces upon a consideration of all the circumstances, including their own wishes; but the requirements of the Public Service will rank before every other consideration.

(ii) Except in the case of persons continuing to receive Scholarship allowances of equal or greater amounts from the Government of India an allowance amounting to £150 will be given to any Candidate who passes his probation at one of the Universities or Colleges which have been approved by the Secretary of State, viz., the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, St. Andrews, Aberdeen and London (University College); Victoria University, Manchester.

This allowance will be paid to the selected Candidate in four instalments on the following dates respectively:—December 24th, after his selection, March 25th, June 24th, and the date of his signing his covenant on being finally appointed to the Service.

An allowance on account of passage to India will be paid to each newly appointed civilian to the amount of £40, for passage to Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, and £50 for passage to Rangoon. These allowances will only be paid after production of evidence that the officer has engaged a First Class passage. An Officer who prefers it can have a First Class passage taken for him by the India Office in lieu of receiving a passage allowance. Applications giving proposed dates of sailing should be made to the Secretary, Judicial and Public Department, India Office, London, S.W. 1.

The payment of each of the first three instalments will be conditional on the receipt, by the Secretary of State, through the Civil Service Commissioners, of a Certificate that the Candidate has fulfilled up to date the requirements of the Authorities, and shown satisfactory conduct at the Authorized University or College; the fourth and final instalment will be paid as soon as the selected Candidate has signed his covenant, and for its payment no certificate from College Authorities will be required.

The whole probation must ordinarily be passed at the same Institution. Migration will not be permitted except for special reasons approved by the Secretary of State.

(iii) Each Candidate will be required before receiving the first instalment of his allowance to execute an agreement binding himself and one surety, jointly and severally, to refund all monies he may have received from the Secretary of State for India in the event of—

(1) his failure to pass the Final Examination within the time prescribed by the Regulations, and to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners of his fitness for admission to the Indian Civil Service, or

(2) his subsequent failure to execute the usual covenant, and to proceed to India, as and when he shall be directed by the Secretary of State for India.

(iv) All Candidates obtaining Certificates will be also required to enter into covenants, by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to make such payments as under the rules and regulations for the time being in force, they may be required to make towards their own pensions or for the pensions of their families. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(v) The seniority in the Indian Civil Service of the Candidates obtaining Certificates will be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the combined marks of the Open Competitive and Final Examinations, but may ultimately be affected by appointments made by the Secretary of State under the Temporary Provisions Act, 1915.

(vi) Candidates obtaining Certificates will be required to report their arrival in India within such period after the grant of their Certificates of Qualification as the Secretary of State may in each case direct.

(vii) Candidates who fail to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners at the Final Examination held in any year will be definitely rejected, and will not be allowed to present themselves for re-examination, unless it shall appear to the Secretary of State in Council, after reference to the Civil Service Commissioners, that such failure is due to circumstances wholly exceptional and beyond the control of the Candidate.

A minute and detailed knowledge will not be looked for in this part of the Examination. But its aim will be to test how far the Candidates have studied at first hand the chief productions of the greatest English writers, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English Literature.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the following periods, which will follow each other year by year in rotation :—

The names and other indications placed beside the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.

PROVINCIAL FINANCE.

No. 1217-F.

Simla, the 2nd June, 1917.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

In paragraphs 108-110 of the speech of the Hon 'ble the Finance Member introducing the Financial Statement for 1917-18, it was announced that it had been decided, with the approval of the Secretary of State for India, to treat expenditure under the head " 33—Famine Relief ", with effect from the year 1917-18, as divisible between Imperial and Provincial revenues in the proportion of $\frac{3}{4}$ and $\frac{1}{4}$. The previous arrangements for the apportionment of the expenditure as well as the reasons which led to the change are stated at length in the Government of India, Finance Department, circular letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914 and in their despatch to the Secretary of State for India No. 307, dated the 23rd December 1916, which, together with the replies from the Local Governments concerned and the Secretary of State, are published for general information.

2. The incidence of the expenditure on famine relief in provinces with which regular Provincial settlements are in force will be governed in future by the following rules :—

(i) All expenditure on famine relief from the 1st April 1917 (including that incurred in the provinces of Burma and Assam to which the previous scheme for the adjustment of famine expenditure did not apply and in the non-jurisdictional estates in Bombay) will be divided between Imperial and Provincial revenues in the proportion of three-fourths and one-fourth, the credits which have accumulated in favour of Provincial Governments in the pro forma accounts of famine expenditure maintained under the previous arrangements being written off from that date.

(ii) If the Provincial share of expenditure resulting from a widespread and prolonged famine should be so great as to reduce the Provincial balance below one-half the prescribed minimum, the treatment of further expenditure will be a subject for special arrangement at the time.

(iii) Expenditure incurred during observation and test will in future be charged to the head " 33—Famine Relief " instead of as entirely Provincial expenditure to " 32—Miscellaneous " or " 45 —Civil Works".

(iv) Under the special prophylactic scheme of relief which obtains in the Central Provinces, works specially undertaken for the relief of distress after scarcity has been declared should be classed as " scarcity works " if their cost cannot be met either from the budget provision for civil works or by reappropriation. The cost of these scarcity works will be charged to the head " 33—Famine Relief," subject to the proviso that, when the budget for any year has to be framed with reference to the existence of famine or quasi-famine conditions, the grant under the head "45—Civil Works" shall be placed at a figure not less than that for the last normal year.

ORDERED that this Resolution be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations, the Revenue and Agriculture and the Public Works Departments, the Comptroller and Auditor General, the Controller of Currency, and all Civil Accountants General and Comptrollers.

Ordered also that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

No. 2044-F., dated 31st December 1914.

To— { All Local Governments (except Burma).
The Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

SIR,

I am directed to refer to the Resolution moved by the late Hon'ble Rai Sri Rám Bahádur in the Imperial Legislative Council on the 7th March 1914,* with reference to the scheme for the apportionment of famine relief expenditure introduced by the orders contained in the Government of India's Finance Department letter No. 1674-A., dated the 20th March 1907, and to the undertaking given by the Hon'ble Finance Member in the course of the ensuing debate to consider whether the provincial allotments under that scheme required revision. The existing arrangements have accordingly been carefully re-examined. The primary object of this scrutiny was to consider the possible rectification of minor inequalities as between different provinces, but their study of the question has led the Government of India to think that a more radical revision of the scheme may be desirable. Before framing their final conclusions and addressing the Secretary of State thereon, they would be glad to receive the opinions of Local Governments on the suggestions put forward in this letter.

* Vide Gazette of India (Part VI), dated the 14th March 1914, pages 623-626.

2. The Provincial Famine Insurance scheme, as it may be conveniently termed, has now been in force for seven years, and has been tested in this interval by the frequent occurrence of famine expenditure, though not on the almost continuously high scale † experienced in the quinquennium 1896-97 to 1900-01. Its main object was to lay down definite rules on liberal lines as to the extent to which expenditure on famine relief should be treated as an Imperial obligation, and from this point of view it has, it is believed, in the absence of any extreme test, worked satisfactorily, and has proved acceptable to Local Governments.

† Vide the figures in Statement I attached.

3. This object, however, was associated with an elaborate and technical procedure which appears to the Government of India to be capable of simplification. Prior to the introduction of the existing arrangements, it was the practice for the Government of India to set aside annually, in non-famine years out of Imperial revenues, by debit to "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt", a sum of Rs. 75 lakhs, the expenditure being shown in the accounts as Imperial, and being actually devoted to productive capital expenditure. In famine years this allotment was reduced by the amount of expenditure actually incurred on famine relief, and was thus suspended altogether if that expenditure exceeded Rs. 75 lakhs. The underlying idea, to which the present scheme owes its peculiar form, was that there should not only be an Imperial allotment towards the reduction or avoidance of debt, but provincial allotments as well, i.e., that each Local Government the territories of which are liable to visitations of famine should annually set aside a fixed amount under this head, the expenditure being treated as Provincial. This annual provincial allotment was to be regarded as a form of insurance payment, in return for which any famine expenditure incurred by a province was to be wholly Imperial within certain prescribed limits. The extent to which any particular Local Government is thus entitled, at any given time, to have its future famine expenditure treated as Imperial is represented by its "famine credit" in the pro formâ account, which has to be maintained under the system described.

4. If under the scheme the provincial allotments towards the reduction or avoidance of debt had been found from revenues already assigned to the provinces, the arrangements introduced in 1907 would have involved an insurance of a genuine kind. Since, however, no allowance had been made for the liability of a province to famine in the calculation of the revenues to be assigned to it under its provincial settlement, the Government of India accepted the position that any sum required by a province under this scheme for expenditure under "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt" must be supplied by an assignment from Imperial revenues. The normal Imperial allotment to "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt" was accordingly reduced to Rs. 37½* lakhs, and the remaining Rs. 37½ lakhs are transferred annually to Provincial by an assignment through the Land Revenue head, the amount so transferred being then treated as provincial expenditure under "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt". Accordingly, subject to the incidental consequence referred to in paragraph 6 below, the whole transaction, so far as the regular accounts are concerned, is a paper adjustment only.

*The total Imperial and Provincial allotments respectively are liable to modification when any province or provinces have reached their maximum credit, but it will suffice to state the normal position.

5. These technicalities of the present system present great difficulties to the increasing number of non-official Members of the Legislative Councils who take an intelligent interest in financial matters, as well as to the public generally, and complicate all explanations of figures and transactions in regard to famine insurance and famine relief expenditure. It appears to the Government of India that nothing essential would be sacrificed if this portion of the scheme were abandoned in favour of a reversion to the older practice of debiting the entire allotment for reduction or avoidance of debt under Imperial. The provincial allotments and the corresponding assignments through the Land Revenue head would then disappear; but the pro formâ account would be maintained as at present; and the substantial interests of the Local Governments would be in no way affected.

6. An indirect consequence of the existing system is that while the Imperial portion of the allotments to "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt" is wholly or partly suspended in years of famine, as explained in paragraph 3 above, the provincial portion continues in full, in order to secure to the Local Governments a continuance of their annual credits without abatement. From a financial standpoint, this practice is undesirable. In years of severe famine, the Government of India's resources are in any case strained to meet expenditure on famine relief, and, in addition, their revenues are likely to be severely depleted. It may be, indeed, that a deficit has to be faced. It is not suitable that at such times the Government of India should be setting current revenues aside for productive capital outlay in the guise of famine insurance. The proper course would be to conserve their resources for the exclusive purpose of meeting the famine itself. If the various adjustments connected with the present arrangements are abandoned, the former and more correct procedure in this respect will automatically be restored.

7. It has already been pointed out that there has been no experience, since the introduction of the present scheme, of continuous famine outlay on the scale experienced in the years preceding, when, not infrequently, a province, already exhausted by one year's famine, was again confronted with heavy famine outlay in the following year, or a year or two later. In such a case, the present system, which relies upon the gradual building up of the so-called famine credits, would inevitably break down. The amount at credit might be exhausted in the first year of severe famine, and on the early recurrence of the calamity the province concerned would have only one or two years' allotments at its credit. It appears to the Government of India that in this respect the present scheme, to some extent, disregards the difficulties which it was primarily designed to meet. It gives very liberal assistance to a province in which famine conditions happen to recur at relatively long intervals, while another province, which suffers from famine to the same aggregate extent in the same period, but whose misfortunes are compressed within a few almost consecutive years, would benefit to a relatively minor extent, though intrinsically even more deserving of assistance. In other words, the famine credit, or the sum assured if the analogy of insurance is to be used, should be a credit automatically reviving on the termination of each distinct period of famine, and not dependent on a long period of previous immunity.

8. Such a modification of the existing scheme will involve an important new benefit to the provinces, and though the Government of India are prepared to recommend a change on these lines to the Secretary of State, if the suggestion commends itself to the Local Governments, the concession ought to be accompanied by some curtailment or rectification of the scheme in other respects. In the first place, it would be reasonable to reduce to some extent the maximum credits at present allowed. This will be more clearly appreciated from the illustration of the actual operation of the suggested revised scheme which is given in paragraph 12 below. As will be seen later, however, the Government of India do not propose to reduce to any large extent the aggregate of the maximum credits at present allowed, but some material reduction seems called for in one or two cases with a view to the rectification of existing inequalities.

9. The existing annual credits were based on the average annual famine expenditure of each province during the 25 years ending 1905-06, and roughly represent about half these amounts; and the present maximum credits, though bearing no uniform relation to the corresponding annual credits, were influenced by them, and so far as this was the case, they too are dependent on the past averages of famine expenditure above referred to. As famine expenditure is in most years of a long cycle either altogether absent or relatively insignificant in any given province, these averages were dominated almost entirely by the heavy famine outlay of the period 1896-97 to 1901-02, and the influence of that period is thus reflected also in the standards adopted for the maximum credits. Some provinces, in the period mentioned, incurred outlay on an exceedingly large scale, and in the present arrangements, the tacit assumption has thus been stereotyped that they will necessarily suffer to an equally exceptional extent in the future. It is no doubt true, and should be recognised, that, taking provinces as a whole, the liability of Bombay, the Central Provinces and the United Provinces to famine outlay is distinctly greater than in other parts of India. But it appears to be statistically incorrect to base the permanent arrangements exclusively on the experience of a single famine cycle. It is by no means certain that the provinces which then suffered most will, on a future occasion, have to incur an equally heavy outlay, especially in view of recent developments in the methods of famine administration. On the other hand, it is at least possible that the provinces the outlay of which in 1896-97 to 1901-02 was on a lower scale may occasionally be more severely assailed in future. If the principle of an annually reviving credit is adopted in future, the annual credits will naturally disappear entirely, and the maximum credit will be the only significant datum. It seems, therefore, to the Government of India to be important to take the present opportunity of rectifying any serious relative disproportion between these maxima; and the foregoing criticisms suggest that the right course, in applying the experience of 1896-97 to 1901-02, will be to reject extremely low or extremely high results, i.e., to fix the maxima for such provinces as Bombay and the Central Provinces at somewhat lower figures than that experience would suggest, and in the case of some other provinces, to make fuller provision for the contingencies of the future. In any case it is clear that a higher proportion of the aggregate credit allowed should be assigned to the United Provinces whatever statistical hypothesis be adopted.

10. A second and minor defect of the existing arrangements, which might, as the Government of India think, be simultaneously remedied, is the fact that, within the prescribed maximum limits, they throw upon Imperial the entire liability for famine outlay however small. The expenditure may amount in a particular year to a few lakhs only, and it may be incurred by a province with an overflowing balance. It appears anomalous that in such a case the Imperial Government, which may then or in the near future be bearing a heavy burden on account of areas more severely stricken, should also undertake the relatively insignificant outlay of provinces which, for the time being, are almost entirely exempt. It appears, therefore, to the Government of India that Local Governments might well be required to meet from provincial resources the first few lakhs of famine outlay in all cases. They suggest, as a convenient and uniform standard that the first portion of the total outlay which would thus be wholly provincial should be an amount represented by 10 per cent. of the maximum credit in each case.

11. The precise procedure to be adopted in connection with a system of reviving credits is a matter not free from difficulty. A severe famine originating in the failure of some particular monsoon will probably involve famine outlay in the remaining half of the same financial year and in the earlier months of the following year. The "famine year" may in fact be coveniently regarded as extending from 1st October to the 30th September. If the following monsoon is again unfavourable, so that famine relief outlay has to be continued beyond the 30th September, a new and distinct famine may be regarded as commencing from the 1st October of the second year.

12. The entire proposals for modifying, without altogether abrogating, the existing system, may perhaps be most clearly exhibited by a hypothetical example. It may be supposed that under the existing system the maximum credit of a particular province is Rs. 30 lakhs, towards which it normally contributes a sum of Rs. 5 lakhs yearly. Under the scheme now proposed, this annual contribution will disappear. The maximum credit may reasonably be reduced to Rs. 25 lakhs, and the Local Government may be required to meet all famine expenditure up to Rs. 2½ lakhs. Accordingly, if the monsoon of a particular year (1915-16) fails and severe famine occurs, with the result that famine outlay to the extent of Rs. 50 lakhs is incurred between the 1st October 1915 and the 30th September 1916, the first Rs. 2½ lakhs of this outlay will be wholly provincial; the next Rs. 25 lakhs will be wholly Imperial; and the remaining Rs. 22½ lakhs will be shared equally between Imperial and Provincial. If the monsoon of 1916-17 also fails or is so unfavourable that, in consequence of the already impoverished state of the province, relief operations continue to be necessary beyond the 30th September 1916, the first Rs. 2½ lakhs of famine outlay incurred between the 1st October 1916 and 30th September 1917 will be wholly provincial; any further outlay in the same period up to Rs. 25 lakhs will be wholly Imperial; and any further outlay still, in excess of Rs. 27½ lakhs, will be equally divided. In like manner if famine had recurred after a somewhat longer interval, the Local Government, apart from its own liability to meet the early expenditure, would start each agricultural year with a full famine credit of Rs. 25 lakhs, whatever the history of previous years had been.

13. It appears to the Government of India that, if such a system be adopted, it would be reasonable to fix the future maximum credits at the following amounts :—

[In thousands of rupees.]

Central Provinces	50,00
Bengal	5,00
Bihar and Orissa	20,00
United Provinces	50,00
Punjab	12,50
Madras	25,00
Bombay	62,50
	2,25,00

The relation between the latest famine statistics and the proposed credits will be found in Statement II appended to this letter, which also sets forth the existing standards. It will be seen that, taking the provinces as a whole, the total credits proposed fall short by only 10 per cent. of those at present conceded.

14. While, however, the proposed system will, it is thought, retain and extend all that is essential in the present methods, it too is not altogether free from the reproach of complexity. In particular, there is a certain incovenience in the calculation of famine expenditure with reference to the agricultural year from the 1st October to the 30th September instead of to the financial year. This inconvenience, though in itself open to objection, can hardly be avoided if the system of reviving credits is to be applied. A credit which revived in full on the first April of a year in which famine was already established, and continuing would in effect be given twice over for the same famine, and the credit itself would accordingly have to be on a much reduced scale. The practical operation of such an arrangement would be extremely uncertain, and it is doubtful if the Local Governments and that portion of the public which is interested in such matters would feel the same confidence in a reduced allowance bearing only a very arbitrary relationship to the famine outlay occurring in the periods which the allowance covered.

15. The Government of India would accordingly ask the Local Governments to consider the much simpler alternative of abandoning the present system altogether, and treating the head " 33, Famine Relief " as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share of famine relief expenditure being taken uniformly at $\frac{3}{4}$ and the provincial share at $\frac{1}{4}$. This particular distribution is suggested as it represents roughly the assistance which Imperial actually gives, in the long run, towards famine expenditure under existing arrangements. This inference is based on a careful study of the available statistics, but the points involved are complex and do not admit of precise statistical treatment. The Government of India do not, therefore, propose to develop this conclusion in full. They think it will be readily recognized by the Local Goverments that the acceptance of three-quarters of all future famine expenditure would involve very full recognition of the Government of India's responsibility for coming to the aid of the provinces in times of agricultural disaster, and that no Local Government can reasonably press for a smaller provincial share. Whatever system be adopted, it is essential that it should recognize the financial responsibility of Local Governments for the due control of the famine relief expenditure which they administer. The alternative of treating it as uniformly divisible, while enforcing this requirement more prominently, will relieve the Local Governments from contingencies such as that mentioned in paragraph 7, for which the existing system makes little provision ; it will avoid the complication involved in reckoning the famine year from the 1st October ; and it is free from the elaboration which even a modified form of the existing arrangements must perpetuate.

The adoption of this alternative would also, of course, involve its extension to those provinces (Burma and Assam) which, owing to their practical immunity from famine, are not included within the scope of the present scheme.

16. In short, the principal advantages of the scheme proposed in the preceding paragraph may be summed up as follows :—

(1) It does away with the complexities and disadvantages inherent in the present scheme, as also with those which would remain under the modifications of that scheme which have been suggested in the earlier part of this letter.

(2) It obviates the possibility of invidious comparisons between one province and another in respect of the amount of assistance obtained from Imperial revenues. Every one of them will be on the same footing, receiving aid to the extent of $\frac{3}{4}$ of its actual famine outlay.

(3) The system will be simple throughout. There will not be different and confusing stages, viz., (a) as suggested in paragraph 10, full expenditure from Provincial, (b) full expenditure from Imperial, and (c) an equal division.

(4) The Provincial burden will bear a direct proportion to the amount of famine outlay necessary, and will run no risk of being heightened by the fact that there has been a previous famine not long before. The disturbance to Provincial finances, which a famine on any considerable scale must inevitably produce will therefore be kept within definite bounds, whereas under the existing system it might on occasions assume much larger proportions.

17. It will probably be found impracticable for the Government of India to submit proposals to the Secretary of State and obtain his orders in time for the introduction of a revised system as part of the budget of 1915-16. The Government of India would be glad, however, if possible, to receive the views of Local Governments at an early date, so that they may be in a position to make some pronouncement on the subject in connection with the forthcoming financial statement.

J. B. BRUNYATE,

Secretary to the Government of India.

No. 118, dated Fort St. George, the 15th February 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. A. BUTTERWORTH, I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

In reply to your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, on the subject of the apportionment of famine relief expenditure, I am directed to state that the Governor in Council agrees with the Government of India that the simplest and most satisfactory solution of this question is to treat the head 33—Famine Relief as a divided head in the ratio of ¾ths Imperial and ¼th Provincial.

2. I am to add that if this method is not to be adopted, the Government of Madras would prefer to retain the existing arrangements for the financing of famine expenditure rather than to accept the proposal to establish a system of annually reviving credits as described in paragraphs 10 to 12 of your letter. That method in addition to being even more complicated than the present system would be very unfavourable to Provincial finances.

No. 565-Fincl., dated Lahore, the 25th February 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. R. A. MANT, I.C.S, Financial Secretary to the Government, Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, asking for the opinion of this Government on certain proposals put forward by the Government of India for revising the present system of apportioning expenditure on famine relief between Imperial and Provincial revenues. The first proposal of the Government of India is to abolish the practice of transferring Rupees 37½ lakhs annually from Imperial to Provincial revenues, and of debiting the amount so transferred as provincial expenditure under the head "Reduction or Avoidance of Debt." The Lieutenant-Governor, I am to say, has no objection to this proposal, provided that the pro forma account is maintained as at present and that no change is introduced in the final incidence of famine relief expenditure.

2. The second proposal is to modify the present distribution of the expenditure on the following lines. At present the Punjab receives an annual credit of Rupees 1,40,000 which may be accumulated up to Rs. 10 lakhs, and all actual disbursements on famine relief are debited to Imperial revenues up to the limit of the accumulated credit. Expenditure beyond that limit is divided in equal shares between Imperial and Provincial. It is now proposed that in lieu of accumulating credits the province should start each "famine year, beginning on the 1st October", with a lump credit of Rs. 12½ lakhs, and that all famine relief expenditure in the year should be distributed as follows:—

The first 1½ lakhs	...	...	... Provincial.
The next 12½ lakhs ...	...	...	... Imperial.
The remainder	...	...	... ½ Imperial and ½ Provincial.

3. One of the effects of this proposal would be to transfer to Provincial a considerable amount of expenditure which under the present arrangements is met from the Imperial revenues. Statement I appended to your letter shows that in the last five years, though there has been no famine in the province, expenditure has been regularly incurred on famine relief. These disbursements which represent mainly the cost of carrying fodder by rail at concession rates, have all been treated as Imperial. The proposed system would only benefit Provincial revenues when two or more famines followed one another in rapid succession, and His Honour considers that in view of the extension of irrigation, the development of communications, the wider fields of employment, and the higher wages now commanded by labour in the Punjab, he is justified in regarding this as a remote contingency. He is therefore of opinion that the proposal would, in all probability, throw a much heavier burden on Provincial revenues than they have to bear under the present arrangements, and he is therefore strongly opposed to the change.

4. As a minor objection I am to point out that in paragraph 6 of the Finance Department letter No. 4064, dated the 20th July 1906, one of the advantages claimed for the present system was that it would give Local Governments a real inducement to stave off as long as possible the stage at which Imperial assistance becomes inevitable. If the Local Government were to be required to spend Rupees 1¼ lakhs before establishing a claim to Imperial assistance, it would have no inducement to economise this sum in any year when it is clear that the total expenditure will exceed the initial Provincial debit.

5. An alternative proposal which is suggested, and preferred, by the Government of India is to abandon the present system altogether, and to treat "33—Famine Relief" as an ordinary divided head, to be shared between Imperial and Provincial in the proportion of ¾ to ¼. This proposal has the merit of simplicity, and Sir Michael O'Dwyer is inclined to think that it would probably be less detrimental to provincial interests in the long run than the scheme referred to in paragraph 2 above. But it is also open to the objection that it would transfer to Provincial revenues a portion of the expenditure which in ordinary years is under the present system classed as Imperial and that its advantage from the provincial point of view would be dependent on the frequency and severity of future famines. As explained above, His Honour thinks it reasonable to hope that the province will be better secured in the future against these visitations than it has been in the past; he therefore considers that the treatment of one-fourth of the total famine relief expenditure as Provincial is likely to be considerably more costly to the province than the present system, and if required to make a choice between the two, he would prefer to adhere to the latter.

6. Sir Michael O'Dwyer is, however, in sympathy with the desire of the Government of India to simplify the system of accounting for expenditure on famine relief, and, what he regards as more important, to secure economy in its disbursement. He therefore puts forward, for the consideration of the Government of India, the following further alternative, which is designed to achieve both the above objects. His Honour understands from the remarks made in paragraph 9 of your letter and from the figures shown in Statement II that it is admitted that an annual credit of Rs. 2,50,000 would be more appropriate for the Punjab than the present assignment of Rs. 1,40,000. If the present credit is raised to the former figure, i.e., Rs. 2½ lakhs, and converted into a permanent assignment, the Lieutenant-Governor would be prepared to accept the responsibility for all future famine relief expenditure as a wholly Provincial charge. He is aware that, in offering to pledge the province to this obligation, he is involving it in a certain amount of risk; but, after full consideration of all the circumstances and probabilities of the case, he has come to the conclusion that the risk is fairly balanced by the prospect of gain in normal years from a fixed assignment. Such an arrangement would also appear to have some advantages for the Government of India. In return for a fixed annual payment they would be insured against the large and indefinite demands to which they are periodically liable under the present system.

No. 2439-F., dated Ranchi, the 22nd February 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. E. L. L. HAMMOND, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bihar and Orissa,

From—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, inviting the opinion of the Local Government on the proposed modification of the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme.

2. The Local Government agree in the view that the procedure for the apportionment of famine relief expenditure introduced by Mr. Meston's letter No. 1674-A., dated the 20th March 1907, is complicated and technical. It seems to them, however, that this is due chiefly to the system of passing the credits and debits through the Provincial budgets, which does not appear to be a necessary part of the scheme; the pro forma account might very well be maintained without it, in which case the procedure would be comparatively simple and intelligible.

3. If, however, a change is to be made, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council would much prefer the alternative indicated in paragraph 15 of your letter, i.e., the would abandon the present system altogether, and treat the head "33—Famine Relief" as a divided head, the Imperial share being taken at three-quarters and the provincial share at one-quarter. In this case credit would have to be allowed in the Financial Settlement for the Provincial share of famine expenditure. In ordinary years, free from famine, this amount would be allowed to accumulate in the Provincial balances, while in a year of severe famine, the fund should be drawn upon, with the previous sanction of the Government of India, to the extent necessary for the famine expenditure which cannot be conveniently met by reappropriation from other heads in the Provincial budget. The other alternative described in paragraphs 8—14 of your letter is more complicated than the present system would be, if modified in the manner indicated above; and so far as can be judged from the figures quoted in Statement I, appended to your letter, it would involve a much heavier proportional expenditure from Provincial revenues.

No. 1437-F., dated Calcutta, the 5th March 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. H. L. STEPHENSON, C.I.E., I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, in which the Government of India suggest two alternative schemes in modification of the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme. Before framing their final conclusion and addressing the Secretary of State the Government of India enquire which of the two schemes will be more advantageous to this Presidency.

2. In reply, I am to state, for the information of the Government of India, that for this Presidency where famines are likely to be rare past experience shows that the existing system offers greater advantages than either of the alternatives now suggested, but His Excellency in Council admits that because famines are rare in Bengal, the consideration of the circumstances of this Presidency should not outweigh the objections urged against the present system in repect of provinces more unfortunately situated. Of the alternative schemes suggested His Excellency in Council greatly prefers the second as detailed in paragraph 15 of the letter under reply.

No. 958, dated Allahabad, the 17th March 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. A. W. PIM, Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces, Financial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. 2044-F., of the 31st December 1914, requesting the opinion of the Local Government on certain suggestions put forward in connection with the scheme for the apportionment of famine relief expenditure introduced by the orders contained in the Government of India's Finance Department letter No. 1674-A., dated the 20th March 1907.

2. In the letter under reference the Government of India observe that the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme has been tested by the experience of seven years and is believed, in the absence of any extreme trial, to have worked satisfactorily as regards its main object and to have proved acceptable to Local Governments.

This object, however,—the determination on liberal lines of the extent to which famine relief should be treated as an Imperial obligation—was associated with an elaborate and technical procedure which appears to the Government of India to be capable of simplification. It results, you remark, in the financially undesirable practice that, while the Imperial portion of the allotments to "Reduction or Avoidance of debt" is wholly or partly suspended in years of famine, the provincial portion continues in full in order to secure to the Local Governments a continuance of their annual credits without abatement. Finally by making no special provision for dealing with a succession of rapidly recurring famines, it disregards to some extent the difficulties which it was primarily designed to meet.

3. As one of two alternative methods of remedying these defects, a scheme is set out in your letter, of which a prominent feature is the automatic revival of the famine credit in a province where it has been depleted by actual expenditure on relief. Under the existing scheme the credit, after a famine which has exhausted it, has to be slowly built up again to the maximum by the accumulation of the annual credits allowed to the province. By the arrangement which you now describe, the maximum credit will be restored at once after a famine; and a second feature of importance is that this revival will operate at the beginning of the agricultural year and not of the financial year. In other words, the year will, for famine purposes, be considered as running from the 1st October to the 30th September, and the credit available on the 1st October will be valid against relief expenditure occurring during the succeeding twelve months irrespective of the fact that the expenditure in question will be shown in the accounts of two financial years. Should a second failure of the monsoon necessitate further heavy expenditure during the succeeding cold weather, the famine credit will automatically revive from the 1st October.

4. Your letter then goes on to point out that, inasmuch as the automatic revival of a liberal credit involves an important new benefit to the provinces, it may in fairness be accompanied by a modification and some redistribution of the existing maxima; in carrying out this change, the Government of India suggest the assigning of a higher proportion of the aggregate credit to the United Provinces. Finally they point out that second and minor defect may at the same time be remedied by providing that the first portion of the outlay on each individual famine should be wholly provincial up to an amount equivalent to 10 per cent. of this maximum credit in each case.

5. The alterations in the existing system which have been thus outlined will, in the opinion of the Government of India, retain and extend all that is essential in the present system. They will not, however, leave it altogether free from the reproach of complexity, more especially owing to the introduction of the October to September year;—a procedure which could only be avoided (if the system of reviving credits is to be maintained) by a serious reduction in the amounts of maximum credits. The Government of India therefore recommend to the special consideration of Local Governments a second and much simpler alternative scheme by which the present system will be abandoned altogether and the head "33—Famine Relief" will be treated as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share of famine relief expenditure being uniformly taken as $\frac{3}{4}$th and the Provincial share at $\frac{1}{4}$th. This system will avoid all the complexities and disadvantages attaching to the present scheme, and to the modified (or first alternative) scheme, while involving a very full recognition of the responsibilty of the Government of India for coming to the relief of provinces in times of agricultural disaster.

6. I have been directed to summarize the proposals in your letter thus fully, in order that the Local Government may be corrected, if it has failed in any respect to understand a question of admitted complexity. Assuming that the case has been rightly epitomized above, the Lieutenant-Governor wishes, in the first place, to express his general agreement with the criticisms contained in your letter on the existing arrangements. Sir James Meston was never impressed by the special virtue of the account system which they involve, and he readily concurs in the desirability of simplifying it and making it more intelligible. In the second place this Government is particularly gratified that recognition is now given to the exiguous share which the United Provinces have received of the benefits of the scheme. Since the present system of the provincial credits was introduced, this Government has had to finance two famines, one in 1907-08 and the other in 1913-14. The famine of 1907-08 found the province with the credit of 22,50 and resulted in a total provincial expenditure of 93,64; that of 1913-14 commenced with a credit of 18,95 and cost the province 15,78. If, as it is now admitted, it would have been equitable, the annual credit had been 10 lakhs instead of 4½ lakhs, and the accumulated provincial credit 60 lakhs at the commencement of the first famine, then the provincial share of the total expenditure would have been 69,89. The famine of 1913-14 would have found the province with a credit of about 35 lakhs and would have resulted in provincial expenditure of only 5 lakhs.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor understands, however, that the mere enlargement of our provincial credit, coupled with the retention of all the other incidents of the present scheme, is not contemplated. The Government of India desire consideration only of the two alternative and virtually new schemes described respectively in paragraphs 3 and 4 and in paragraph 5 of this letter. Both these schemes would unquestionably benefit this province. Had the former or more elaborate system been in force during our last two famines, the provincial expenditure would have been 83,44 in 1907-08 and 7,25 in 1913-14. Had the simpler or 'shared head' procedure been in force, our outlay would have been 51,94 and 13,75 respectively. As between the two alternatives, it is calculated that with a famine costing about 85 lakhs the share of the province is equal for the two schemes. Above that limit the 'shared head' system favours the province, but below it the scheme based on the October—September year is advantageous to provincial revenues. This comparison does not, however, fully take into account the great advantages resulting from the revival of the provincial credit which forms the main feature of the first of the two alternative schemes. The importance of this consideration is accentuated by the fact that the history of recent famines shows a rightly increasing liberality in the scale of famine expenditure, more especially as regards measures taken for the preservation of cattle. During the recent famine in these provinces great pressure was put upon this Government to incur responsibilities for cattle preservation which it was unwilling to accept; and even with every desire to avoid extravagance it may be expected that in the future the occasions on which relief measures may be expected to be undertaken will recur with greater frequency than in the past. Atlhough, therefore, the 'shared head' system is more advantageous to provincial revenues in the case of severe famines, these advantages are likely to be more than counterbalanced by the recurring revival of provincial credits which is the main feature of the former alternative. Another novel feature of that alternative, namely the debit of an initial moderate percentage of the cost of famine relief to provincial revenues, is open to no objection of principle. On the whole, therefore, the Lieutenant-Governor would welcome the former or more complicated alternative as more likely to assist the famine policy of this province.

8. His Honour is afraid, however, that the complexity of this scheme, both acknowledged and unforeseen, would be serious handicap; and in the case of a famine extending over more than one monsoon it would be practically impossible to separate the expenditure of the successive financial year It will thus apparently be difficult to discover any system which will be at the same time fairer and more intelligible than the treatment of the head "33—Famine Relief" as a divided head on the lines now suggested by the Government of India. The arguments which formerly told against this system have lost much of their importance with the gradual codification of famine policy while its influence in making Local Governments economical in their famine expenditure from the outset is of great importance. The Lieutenant-Governor is therefore fully prepared, subject to two conditions, to support the proposed division of this head of expenditure in the ratio of ¾th Imperial to ¼th Provincial. The first condition is that this arrangement does not result in any other modification of the Provincial settlement. The second condition is one to which I am to invite the special consideration of the Government of India in the following paragraphs of this letter.

9. The debit from the outset of even one-fourth of direct famine relief charges to Provincial revenues will impose a new and at times a very heavy burden on provincial balances. It is in theory for such emergencies as famine that these balances have been built up, but in practice the general financial position makes it most unlikely in the case of this province that the Local Government will be able to replenish in any reasonable time the draft that would be made upon them by a heavy famine prolonged over two financial years. It is true that the Government of India insure the province against one of the most serious indirect consequences of famine by guaranteeing a minimum of land revenue collections; but the other indirect consequences on a variety of the revenue heads such as Stamps, Excise and Forests, hit us hard in a year when expenditure is abnormally heavy under many heads. Again, the sequels of famine are a serious consideration. It is true that windfalls occur in the recovery of famine suspensions of revenue—windfalls, however, of which the bulk goes to the Imperial head. But against this must be set the risks of taqavi loans in which the Government of India have no share. Liberal taqavi advances are becoming a more prominent feature in each succeeding famine and it is impossible to hope for escape from heavy failures in repayment, more especially when bad seasons follow a widespread scarcity.

Moreover the definite policy of this Government is to reduce the recourse to direct relief works as far as possible by enlarging the ordinary programme of the Public Works Department. It is thus obvious that the provincial revenues have now to bear a large and, with the development of the modern famine policy, a growing proportion of the total financial consequences of famine, apart from the share which they will in future have to take of the expenditure under the head "33—Famine Relief". In estimating what that share will be, a calculation has been made which shows that, in the case of a famine costing less than 140 lakhs, the maintenance of the present allocation of charges between Imperial and Provincial would be more advantageous to the province than the 'shared head' system, provided always that the province is conceded an initial credit of 60 lakhs. For all famines, therefore, within this high margin of cost the province is—taking into account all the consequences of a famine dealt with on modern lines—likely to be considerably worse off than it would be if the present system were maintained with the single change of suitable maximum credit.

10. In view both of this disadvantage and of the general considerations urged above His Honour would suggest that the Provincial liability under the head "33—Famine Relief" be subject to a definite maximum; the charges becoming wholly Imperial after that maximum has been reached. What the figures should be, is for the Government or India to decide; but in view of the fact that the average annual expenditure of this province on famine has been 20½ lakhs, the Lieutenant-Governor would urge, as the second condition of the new arrangement, that the maximum burden on Provincial revenues in any one year should not exceed 25 lakhs. Any substantial famine in this province lasts over two financial years, and would thus involve Provincial expenditure up to 50 lakhs a sum at least as large as Provincial balances are ever likely to be able to endure.

No. 2114, dated Bombay Castle, the 31st May 1915.

From—The HONOURABLE MR. G. CARMICHAEL, C.S.I., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Financial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2044-F., dated 31st December 1914, on the proposed modification of the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, and to offer the following remarks on the proposals made therein.

2. The Governor in Council accepts the statement made in the second sentence of paragraph 2 of the letter from the Government of India that the existing scheme has worked satisfactorily and proved acceptable to the Local Governments, except that it applied only to direct famine expenditure and excluded from its purview indirect famine expenditure—an exclusion against which the Bombay Government twice protested* in vain—and that it has, moreover, not been subjected to the strain of a really big famine. Since the introduction of the present scheme, a further slight modification detrimental to Provincial finances has been made with effect from 1913-14, which requires that all expenditure (even on objects which fall under the head direct expenditure) shall be debited to Provincial heads, if it is incurred during the period of test and observation and famine is not subsequently declared (vide foot-note No. 167-A., Appendix P. to the Civil Account Code, Volume II). The Government of India now propose to remodel the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, the objects in view being stated to be a possible rectification of minor inequalities as between different provinces and a simplification of procedure. As both these objects appear to involve, in some respects at least, modifications still further detrimental to Provincial finances, the proposals are examined somewhat closely, in the following paragraphs.

3. The four tabular statements noted below are appended to this letter:—

(a) Statement marked A, showing the direct and indirect famine expenditure for the period of eleven years (1896-97 to 1906-07) preceding the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, which includes the big famines of 1896-98 and 1899-1901 and two bad years 1901-02 and 1902-03;

(b) Statement marked B, showing the direct and indirect famine expenditure for the eight years during which the present Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme has been in force, which includes no big famine and two years only moderately bad, viz., 1911-12 and 1912-13;

(c) Statement marked C, showing in thousands of rupees the amounts of direct and indirect famine expenditure incurred during the years 1896-97 to 1906-07, which would be debitable to Provincial and Local revenues under (i) the present Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme, (ii) the revised credit system described in paragraph 12 of the letter under reply, and (iii) the 3 to 1 division scheme mentioned in paragraph 15 of the same letter; and

(d) Statement marked D, showing in thousands of rupees the amounts of direct and indirect famine expenditure incurred during the years 1907-08 to 1914-15, which would be debitable to Provincial and Local revenues under (i) the revised credit system, and (ii) the 3 to 1 division scheme mentioned above. Prior to the year 1907-08, when the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme came into force, no allowance was made for famine expenditure at the time of fixing the standards of Provincial revenue and expenditure for the purposes of Provincial Settlement. But it was ruled that when famine did occur the charges for famine relief should be debited to Provincial and it was only when Provincial resources were exhausted that the Government of India necessarily came to the assistance of the Local Government. Thus there was no regular method of division other than the ability or inability of Provincial finances to pay, and the figures of Provincial famine expenditure for the years prior to 1907-08 therefore afford no sound basis for comparison with the expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial revenues under the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme and the two alternative schemes proposed in the letter from the Government of India under reply. The figures as worked out from Statements A and C appended to this letter, however, stand as shown below in thousands of rupees. In these figures the "Local" expenditure is massed with "Provincial", because under the present Famine Relief Code local bodies are relieved of famine expenditure, except to an extremely small extent.

	Period from 1896-97 to 1906-07.
	Direct.	Indirect.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
(i) Expenditure actually debited to Provincial (Statement A).	18,77	1,20,64	1,39,41
(ii) Expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial under the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme under the most favourable circumstances, viz., starting with a maximum credit of 80,00.	2,42,75	1,20,64	3,63,39
(iii) Expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial under the revised credit system proposed by the Government of India.	1,99,02	1,20,64	3,19,66
(iv) Expenditure which would be debitable to Provincial under the 3 to 1 division scheme proposed by the Government of India.	1,65,96	1,20,64	2,86,60

These figures show that if, as is quite within the range of possibility, this Presidency were to be visited with a series of bad years comparable with the period from 1896-97 to 1906-07, and if the scale of expenditure were to be at all proportionate to that entailed in that period, the scheme most favourable to Provincial finances is the 3 to 1 division scheme mentioned in paragraph 15 of the letter from the Government of India.

4. During the period of eight years (1907-08 to 1914-15) for which the existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme has been in force there has been no big famine and two years only moderately bad, viz., 1911-12 and 1912-13. It will be seen from Statement B that under the existing arrangement, famine expenditure debited to Provincial (including Local) revenues amounted to 26,90 (direct 8 plus indirect 26,82), while the amount to the credit of the Local Government in the pro forma account is estimated at 63,09 on 31st March 1915. The figures in Statement D show that the expenditure which would have been debitable to Provincial finances under the two schemes now proposed by the Government of India is as shown below :—

	Direct.	Indirect.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
(i) Under the revised credit system	16,56	26,82	43,38
(ii) Under the 3 to 1 division scheme	11,67	26,82	38,49

These figures show that in a series of ordinary years both the schemes now proposed by the Government of India are less favourable to the Provincial finances than the present system, but the 3 to 1 division scheme is less unfavourable than the other.

5. The existing Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme provides that in the case of widespread and prolonged famine, if in any province the Provincial share of expenditure thus limited should be so great as to reduce the Provincial balance below one-half of the prescribed minimum, the treatment of further expenditure will be a subject for special arrangement at the time. From the figures in column 10 of Statement C it is manifest that in 1900-01 and probably in the two following years this proviso of the system would have had to come into play, for Provincial balances could not have stood the total burdens (shown in the margin *) of direct and indirect famine expenditure in four successive years without being depleted. What the special arrangements would have been cannot be stated, for experience since the present scheme has been in force does not supply any case approaching the catastrophe of 1900, and it seems futile to make any calculation based on a supposed special arrangement. It will be seen from column 12 of Statement C that if the 3 to 1 division scheme now proposed by the Government of India were in force, Provincial finances would have been required to meet an average famine expenditure of 12 lakhs per annum during the three years ending 1898-99 and to provide for the amounts noted below in the following four years :—

* Year.	Rupees in thousands.
1899-1900	55,09
1900-01	1,59,61
1901-02	53,41
1902-03	42,32

Year.	Amount in thousands of rupees.
1899-1900	38,42
1900-01	95,45
1901-02	40,85
1902-03	39,17

In the absence of any special arrangement, such a strain would have seriously crippled Provincial finances, even with the present resources under the Provincial Settlement as recently revised. It is true that recent experience points in the direction of famine expenditure not being required in future famines on the scale which was necessary at the end of the last century and the beginning of this; but it is equally true that in that recent experience there was nothing comparable to the calamity of 1899-1900 either in intensity or in the immensity of the area over which that intense famine extended. It would be at present unsafe to assume that this Presidency will not, at any future time, be visited by a calamity such as that of 1900 and be forced to an expenditure such as the 6¾ crores of rupees which were spent in the years 1899 to 1903. If such a time came, it would be impossible to meet the situation without some special arrangement for the apportionment of famine expenditure between Imperial and Provincial revenues.

6. In connection with the proposals now made by the Government of India, the Governor in Council would lay stress on the following points :—

(a) in considering any scheme relating to the distribution of famine expenditure, it is essential to take account of the indirect expenditure as well as the direct. In a cycle of bad years, the indirect expenditure amounts to 19 per cent. of the whole, while in a series of years with only small famines it reaches a proportion of 38 per cent. of the total. It must be borne in mind that Provincial bears by far the greater share of this indirect expenditure, viz., 78 per cent. of it in the bad cycle and 91 per cent. in the moderate series. The share which Provincial should take of direct expenditure must have regard to the fact of its resources being burdened far more heavily than Imperial by indirect charges;

(b) in famine years the loss of revenue by suspensions and remissions of land revenue tells more severely on Provincial than on Imperial finances. For the Provincial share of the land revenue bears a greater proportion to the Provincial income than the Imperial share of that revenue bears to Imperial receipt; and while it is improbable that Imperial would suffer at the same time from a famine-reduced land revenue in all the provinces at once, a famine-stricken single province receives no support to its revenues from the fact that other provinces are free from famine ;

(c) in any scheme there must be provision for Imperial to come to the relief of Provincial finances in case of any overwhelming calamity such as would, under the ordinary conditions of the scheme, leave Provincial with balances reduced below the minimum prescribed as necessary to enable it to carry on its administration.

7. In the light of the remarks made in the foregoing paragraphs, the Governor in Council is unwilling to accept the revised credit system, the working of which is described in paragraph 12 of the letter under reply. While it would to some extent lighten the burden of direct famine expenditure on Provincial finances in the bad cycle, it would very materially increase it in the moderate series. It is complicated to calculate and does not pay sufficient regard to the three considerations mentioned in the preceding paragraph. The Governor in Council is willing to accept the 3 to 1 division scheme proposed in paragraph 15 of the letter from the Government of India, subject to the following two conditions, viz :—

(1) that the existing rule under which all expenditure incurred during the period of observation and test, though direct, is to be debited to Provincial heads (and not to "33, Famine Relief ") if famine is not subsequently declared shall be abolished, and all direct famine expenditure shall be debited to 33, Famine Relief whether incurred during the period of observation and test and whether famine is subsequently declared or not ; and

(2) that where famine expenditure is, owing to the intensity and extent of the famine, so great that the Provincial balances are under the ordinary distribution of expenditure reduced below the working minimum, the proportion 3-4ths Imperial and 1-4th Provincial shall be for the time altered to such proportion (e.g., 4-5ths and 1-5th, 6-7ths and 1-7th, 7-8ths and 1-8th) as shall suffice to enable Provincial finances, due regard being had to its indirect expenditure, to maintain a working balance.

No. 598-II-3-5-1915, dated Nagpur, the 16th March 1916.

From—The HON'BLE MR. J. T. MARTEN, I. C. S., Second Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces (Finance Department),

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department.

I am directed to refer to the Hon'ble Mr. Brunyate's letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, dealing with the system of apportionment of famine relief expenditure between Imperial and Provincial Funds. The Government of India ask for the opinion of this Administration on certain proposals made in that letter with a view to modifying the existing Famine Insurance Scheme, or to replacing it by a simple financial adjustment which would have the effect of bringing what is considered to be the Provincial share of direct famine expenditure within the scope of the Provincial Settlement.

2. The Chief Commissioner concurs in the criticisms on the present scheme that it is not only complex and technical but also artificial in that the adjustment of the assignments between Provincial and Imperial Revenues is largely a paper adjustment. I am, however, to point out that the artificiality of the present scheme arises from the fact, admitted by the Government of India, that no allowance has been made for the liability of a province to famine in the calculation of the share of revenue to be assigned to it under its Provincial Settlement. Had such an allowance for direct famine expenditure been made at the revision of the Provincial Settlement, the necessary financial adjustment would presumably have taken the form either of a large Provincial share of some divided head of revenue or of an addition to the fixed assignment from Imperial to Provincial. It was the absence of any such provision in the Provincial Settlement for direct famine expenditure which justified the additional paper assignment from Imperial Funds which was necessary to render the Famine Insurance Scheme possible, and the formal nature of the scheme should not be allowed to obscure the fact that it was really intended to represent the extent to which Provincial finances could ordinarily be called upon to contribute towards the direct expenditure on famine relief.

3. As regards the alternative modifications proposed in your letter under reply I am to say that the scheme outlined in paragraphs 7 to 13 of your letter appears to the Chief Commissioner to posses in an even greater degree than the present scheme the disadvantages of complexity and artificiality. As, however, this proposal does not appear to be put forward with any great favour by the Government of India; it is unnecessary for the Chief Commissioner to discuss it any length. The other scheme which is explained in paragraphs 14 to 16 of your letter under reply is, in the Chief Commissioner's opinion, superior in every way to either of the two other schemes, and he is prepared to accept it, subject, however, to the limitations which will be set forth in the succeeding paragraphs of this letter.

4. The objection which the Chief Commissioner wishes to urge against any of these schemes for the adjustment of famine expenditure is that they do not fit in with the policy in regard to famine relief which has been adopted in these Provinces. The financial principles underlying the Famine Insurance Schemes have reference only to the policy of famine relief laid down in the Famine Code. That policy assumes that in all, except the slightest and most local scarcities, the rules of the Famine Code will be brought into force, and expenditure on relief will be carried out in accordance with them. In the Central Provinces, however, a most noteworthy departure has been made from this system of relief. The new policy has been fully explained to the Government of India in the Revenue and Agriculture Department (this Administration's letter No. 1342, dated the 21st September 1911), but it seems desirable that it should again be briefly described, as otherwise the arguments to be now set forth in regard to the financial arrangements for the adjustment of famine relief expenditure may be misunderstood. Briefly stated, the new policy has been to defer as long as possible the application of the rules of the Famine Code; the actual effect of it has been to apply those rules only in respect of gratuitous relief and to leave the relief of the able-bodied to be effected through an expansion of the ordinary programme of public works. The Chief Commissioner does not disguise from himself the possibility that, in a severe and wide spread calamity, recourse might have to be had to the provisions of the regular Famine Code and that the new system of relief might have to be set aside His belief is, however, that in such a case the new system would be worked for some time after the commencement of distress. And he is further of opinion that the new system, in the altered economic conditions of the Province—due to the extension of irrigation and of the mining industry—, will be found capable of meeting fairly severe and wide-spread failures of crops and that it may be counted on as the normal policy of famine relief in these Provinces.

5. Since the adoption of the new policy there have been two periods of scarcity in the Provinces, viz., the period between 1907 and 1909, and the year 1913-14.

The total cost debited against the Provincial Famine Insurance allottment in the earlier of these two periods, in which distress was severe and extended to a considerable portion of the Province, was Rs. 12,87,000, but, as the Government of India are aware, this represents a comparatively small proportion of the actual expenditure due to famine. In this connection I am to invite a reference to this Administration's letter No. 614, dated the 11th March 1909, and to paragraph 5 of this Administration's Resolution No. 1242, dated the 2nd August 1911 (a copy of which was forwarded to the Government of India in the Finance Department), in which an estimate was given of the actual cost of the scarcity in the period now under consideration, in respect of loss of revenue and of increased expenditure directly due to famine. The actual excess expenditure directly due to famine was 22 lakhs in addition to the expenditure of funds in the budget diverted from ordinary works to works especially designed to relieve famine.

The scarcity of 1913-14 was in all respects a much less serious and less widespread calamity. It was dealt with on the same general lines as in 1907-08, with the result that the debit to Famine Relief (Imperial) between the 1st October 1913 and the 30th September 1914 was Rs. 1,27,000, while the actual additional charge on Provincial Funds due to famine amounted, apart from loss of revenue, to 6½ lakhs.

It will thus be seen that since the introduction of the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme the economic circumstances of the Provinces have in no case placed such a strain upon the working of the scheme as to exhibit its operations under conditions of great stress, but at the same time sufficient experience has been gained to demonstrate the difficulties of applying this scheme to the special conditions under which famine relief is administered in these Provinces. Summing up the figures given above the following results may be stated for the two famine periods :—

Year.	Famine Expenditure	Charged to— Provincial.	Imperial.
1907—09	35·00	22·00	13·00
1913—14	7·75	6·50	1·25
Total ...	42·75	28·50	14·25

Thus the so-called insurance scheme devised expressly to protect Provincial finances in time of famine has actually operated in these Provinces in such a manner as to result in two-thirds of the direct famine expenditure, as well as the whole of the indirect expenditure, being thrown upon the Provincial exchequer.

6. In Mr. King's letter No. 1342, dated the 21st September 1911, to the Revenue and Agriculture Department, Sir Reginald Craddock showed clearly that while the system of famine relief which was therein described had the merits of economy and of the avoidance of the general demoralization of the people incidental to famine relief under the Famine Code Rules, it resulted, under the present financial arrangements, in throwing a disproportionately heavy burden upon Provincial Funds, and he claimed that so much of the additional expenditure outside the ordinary provisions of the budget as was directly due to famine relief was a fair charge against the head of " 33, Famine Relief ", under which head alone the benefits of the Famine Insurance could be utilized. In this connection the Chief Commissioner desires to emphasize the fact that under Sir Reginald Craddock's scheme, the special " Scarcity " works, which were to be charged to " 33, Famine Relief ", were only those which could not be financed from the budget. Although the execution of a particular work might not have been provided for in the budget, yet if funds could be found for it by diversion of money provided for some other work or works, it would not be regarded as a special " Scarcity " work, and would not be charged to " Famine Relief ". The arguments put forward by this Administration were not accepted by the Government of India, who, in their (Revenue and Agriculture Department) letter No. 970, dated the 29th July 1913, indicated that they were not prepared to trust to the decision of the Local Administration as to whether an extension of works was justified by the agricultural and economic conditions, and that the only modification of the previous financial arrangements which they were prepared to admit was the offer, as a matter of grace, of some assistance from the Famine Insurance Grant, should Provincial funds and balances be absolutely unable to meet the enhanced expenditure.

7. The Chief Commissioner thinks that the Government of India must admit that this failure to adjust the financial relations between the Imperial and Provincial Governments to suit the more modern economic method of famine administration is unsatisfactory. Provincial Funds certainly cannot continue to bear the burden of famine expenditure of which the Provincial Famine Insurance Scheme was expressly designed to relieve them, and it will be a matter for serious consideration, on the outbreak of another famine, whether the admitted advantages of the Central Provinces system of famine administration must not be sacrificed. It is indeed quite clear that, under any one of the systems of famine insurance dealt with in the Government of India's letter under consideration, it is strongly in the interests of the Provinces from the strictly financial point of view to throw over all thought of economic methods of famine administration and to begin to operate on "33, Famine Relief" by the declaration of famine at an early stage. Sir Benjamin Robertson thinks, however, that the Government of India have perhaps under-rated the means which they will always have of satisfying themselves that the expansion of ordinary works has not been premature or extravagant. The Government of India's own orders require that as soon as agricultural prospects become serious, a special report on the state of affairs shall be submitted to them. They are themselves in a position to observe the course of prices. And, if certain proposals, which the Chief Commissioner is submitting to the Government of India in the Revenue and Agriculture Department as to the formal declaration of "Scarcity" and which will presently be alluded to, are accepted, the Government of India, on such declaration, will receive a special weekly famine telegram and detailed monthly reports and statements. The Government of India will thus always be kept fully informed of the actual conditions, and there can be no apprehension that the Local Administration may uudertake an expensive and extravagant programme of public works without the knowledge of the Government of India, or in circumstances which they might deem insufficient to justify such measures.

8. The proposals mentioned in the last paragraph as to the declaration of scarcity are contained in this Administration's letter No. 548—X-10-1, dated the 16th March 1916, to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture. The suggestion is made that when the stage has been reached at which the helpless and incapable can no longer depend on private charity, and at which the provision of employment on works has to be supplemented by the general distribution of gratuitous relief in a particular area, "Scarcity" should be declared in such area. And it is pointed out that this step—tending as it does to a certain amount of demoralization—will not be undertaken by the Local Administration without the fullest justification. When scarcity has been declared, it is proposed that works specially undertaken for the relief of distress—although they will still be conducted on ordinary contract methods—should be classed as Scarcity works, if they cannot be met, either under the provision for works, or by re-appropriation, from the budget of the year then current.

9. The Chief Commissioner trusts that the Government of India will accept the arrangement proposed. If this is done, it will, he considers, enable the Government of India so far to modify the orders passed in 1913 as to agree to expenditure on scarcity works as thus defined being debited against the head "33, Famine Relief". Up to the declaration of scarcity, all works undertaken, whether financed from funds in the budget or from Provincial balances will be a charge against the Provincial revenues. The former will, after the declaration of scarcity, still continue a Provincial charge: only the latter will come under the head "Famine Relief". The proposal differs from that put forward by Sir Reginald Craddock in that it postpones the debiting of expenditure on this second class of works to "Famine Relief" until scarcity has been declared. And as already remarked in paragraph 7 of this letter, the Government of India will have the fullest information as to the conditions which have led to the declaration of scarcity and to the circumstances of the distress in the reports with which they will be furnished.

10. Should the Government of India be prepared to agree to the modification on these lines of their orders of 1913 and to the admission under a proper system of intelligence of the right of the Local Administration to debit the cost of the extension as a measure of famine relief, of ordinary works to "33, Famine Relief", the Chief Commissioner as stated above is prepared to accept the system proposed in paragraph 15 of the Government of India's letter under reply in place of the present somewhat complicated and obscure arrangement. This system has the effect of introducing a divided head on the expenditure side without any compensation by way of assignment or larger increased share of revenue on the receipt side, notwithstanding that expenditure on famine relief was admittedly not provided for in the Provincial Settlement. But the advantage of having a definite and settled financial arrangement of a fairly simple nature, such as will ensure the possibility of gauging, with some approach to accuracy, the extent of the burden which Provincial resources are likely to be called upon to bear in any particular scarcity or famine, has considerable compensating value.

11. In asking the Government of India to accept the suggestion above put forward as to the debit of Scarcity works as now proposed to be defined in the Code to the head "33, Famine Relief", the Chief Commissioner would again emphasise the fact that relief of distress in the manner adopted in the Central Provinces is both economical and practical; its advantages have been tested in two recent famines, and it has been acknowledged by the Government of India as fulfilling the claims that have been made in its favour. But it throws a severe burden on Provincial finances unless this acknowledgment be accompanied by more favourable treatment in the matter of debiting its cost to the head "Famine Relief". And the proposals now put forward are intended to be a fair means of enabling such treatment to be introduced, and of relieving Provincial finances of the disproportionate share which they have recently borne in meeting famine conditions in these Provinces.

His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Delhi, the 23rd December 1916.

SIR,

We have been considering the desirability of modifying the arrangements sanctioned in Lord Morley's despatch No. 5-Financial, dated the 11th January 1907, for the apportionment of expenditure on famine relief between the Imperial and Provincial Governments.

2. In 1914, in response to a Resolution moved by the late Rai Sri Ram Bahadur in the Imperial Legislative Council on the 7th March of that year, we undertook to consider whether the provincial allotments under the existing scheme required revision. Our examination of the question was primarily directed to the possibility of a rectification of minor inequalities as between different provinces in the light of the experience obtained since the present scheme was introduced. We were, however, led on to the conclusion that the existing arrangements are unduly complicated and that it would be possible to place the question of incidence on a much simpler basis without prejudice to the essential objects in view, viz., that the provinces should depend on Imperial assistance for the greater portion of the special expenditure entailed by relief measures, but that they should at the same time retain a substantial measure of responsibility in the interests of the economical administration of relief.

3. After careful consideration of the question, we placed two alternative proposals before the Local Governments concerned in our Finance Department letter No. 2044-F., dated the 31st December 1914, a copy of which we enclose. Briefly, the object of the first proposal there elaborated was to safeguard the interests of a province suffering from more than one famine within a short interval. The present system relies upon the gradual building up of famine credits and therefore does not provide adequately for the case of a province the amount at whose credit has been exhausted by famine expenditure and which is attacked by another famine before there has been time to build up a substantial credit. It was suggested that this difficulty might be met by providing that the credits up to which expenditure will be borne by Imperial revenues should revive after each famine. This solution, however, would introduce a fresh complication owing to the necessity for calculating the expenditure with reference to the "famine year" (from October to September) as distinguished from the official year. On the whole, therefore, it seemed to us that it would be preferable to abandon the present system altogether and to treat the head "33—Famine Relief" as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share being taken uniformly at $\frac{3}{4}$ and the Provincial at $\frac{1}{4}$. This particular distribution was suggested as it represents approximately the assistance which Imperial revenues actually give in the long run towards famine expenditure under existing arrangements. This alternative proposal was accordingly commended to the consideration of Local Governments, and its advantages were indicated in paragraph 16 of the Finance Department letter.

4. It will be seen from the replies received, copies of which are enclosed, that the Local Governments are generally in favour of this simpler method of dividing famine expenditure in the fixed proportion of three-fourths Imperial and one-fourth Provincial. Some provinces have, however, attached certain qualifications to their acceptance of our proposal and these we examine below :—

The Government of the United Provinces asks that the provincial liability in any one financial year should be limited to a maximum of R 25 lakhs, while the Government of Bombay suggest that, when provincial balances are, under the proposed distribution of famine expenditure, reduced below a working minimum, the shares of the expenditure to be borne by Imperial and Provincial revenues should, for the time being, be altered to such a proportion as will suffice to enable Provincial Governments to maintain a working balance. These reservations are doubtless made with a view to safeguarding the provincial finances from a complete collapse. The present system, however, contemplates that the incidence of famine expenditure will be the subject of special arrangements when the provincial balance has been reduced below half the prescribed minimum. It is our intention under the scheme now proposed to maintain the same safeguard and we do not think that we should go further in accelerating the stage at which special Imperial assistance will commence, or in defining the form which it should take. The object of our proposals is not to do away with the underlying principles of the 1906-07 scheme as regards the distribution of famine expenditure between Imperial and Provincial, but merely to substitute a more convenient working method. Thus, as already explained, the proportion of three-fourths and one-fourth was suggested as representing roughly the assistance actually given under existing arrangements. The suggestion made by the Government of Bombay would go beyond the amendment of method we have in view by introducing a fresh principle to the advantage of the provinces. There would, moreover, be considerable practical difficulties in working a sliding scale of the character suggested by the Local Government in paragraph 7 (2) of their letter No. 2144, dated the 31st May 1915. Again, the imposition of a maximum annual limit for provincial liability, such as that proposed by the Government of the United Provinces, has the disadvantage that a larger share of the expenditure would fall on Imperial revenues in the case of a severe famine confined in its effects mainly to a single financial year than in the case of one which extends more or less equally over two financial years. This suggestion also involves a reversion to the unsatisfactory arrangement of fixing comparative provincial standards of expenditure which are liable to require revision with reference to changing conditions and also to be made the subject of invidious criticism.

We are not prepared therefore to accept these suggestions.

The other stipulation made by the United Provinces Government, viz., that the proposed arrangements should not involve any other modification of the provincial settlement does not call for comment, as no such modification is entailed.

5. A further reservation made by the Government of Bombay relates to the treatment of expenditure incurred during the period of observation and test when famine is not actually declared. Such expenditure is at present charged as provincial, under the head "45—Civil Works" or "32—Miscellaneous", and we are ready to concede that this should in future be charged to "33—Famine Relief." The present arrangement is not altogether logical since the nature of the expenditure is the same whether famine is declared or not, and moreover it offers an inducement to the premature declaration of scarcity or famine. We recognise also that it is desirable to encourage Local Governments to take prophylactic measures, which they might be led to delay too long if they were uncertain whether they would have to bear the whole cost or not. We may also observe that owing to the recent recognition of "scarcity" as a distinct stage of distress between "observation and test" and "famine", and the debit to the head "33—Famine Relief" of expenditure incurred during the period of scarcity, the concession is probably of less importance than was formerly the case.

6. Very similar considerations apply to a recommendation made by the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces. In the despatch from Lord Hardinge's Government, No. 23 (Revenue and Agriculture), dated the 7th August 1913, reference was made to a special system of relief in force in the Central Provinces, the essence of which is that, before famine is declared, the programme of ordinary works is expanded so as to provide employment freely and thus to obviate as far as possible the necessity for resorting to ordinary famine relief works. As just stated, it has recently been decided to recognise "scarcity" for the purpose of the famine codes as a definite stage of distress intermediate between "observation and test" and "famine", and in the Central Provinces scarcity will ordinarily be declared in a district or area as soon as the general distribution of gratuitous relief in such district or area becomes necessary. The Chief Commissioner proposes that, when this has been done, works specially undertaken for the relief of distress should be classed as "scarcity works" if their cost cannot be met either from the budget provision for works or by reappropriation, the cost of these scarcity works being charged to the head "33—Famine Relief".

We are of opinion that the Central Provinces system has considerable advantages from the point of view of economy in famine finance. There is also much force in the contention of the Chief Commissioner that this special scheme of relief at present throws on provincial revenues expenditure which is really incurred on famine relief and which would be classed as such elsewhere. The recognition of scarcity as a definite stage of distress has the effect of postponing the stage at which the expenditure on the special works will be charged as famine expenditure and we recognise that the reports which the local Administration is required to send to the Government of India under the famine code, put them in a position to satisfy themselves that "scarcity works" have not been undertaken either too early or on an extravagant scale. We, therefore, endorse the Chief Commissioner's recommendation that expenditure on scarcity works should be debited to the head "famine relief" in so far as it cannot be met directly or by reappropriation from the civil works budget provision for the year. And when the budget for any year has to be framed with reference to the existence of famine or quasi-famine conditions, the Local Administration will be required, in view of the special system of relief obtaining in the province, to place the grant under the head "45—Civil Works" at a figure not less than that for the last normal year.

Despatch from Lord Minto's Government, No. 47, dated 24th February 1910, and Lord Morley's despatch No. 40-Pol., dated 13th May 1910.

7. It was decided in 1910 (vide the correspondence noted in the margin) that all direct famine relief outlay incurred in the non-jurisdictional estates in Bombay should be borne by Government and the Local Government were instructed to consider the question of levying a famine cess in the areas referred to in order to defray the expenditure. For the reasons stated in their letter No. 2939, dated 17th May 1915 (a copy of which is enclosed), the Government of Bombay came to the conclusion that it is not feasible to levy a famine cess, and asked that the expenditure on relief in the estates in question may be accepted as an entirely Imperial liability. We accept the opinion of the Local Government that the question of a cess should be dropped, but consider that the expenditure on relief in the areas referred to should, like other famine expenditure, be divided between Imperial and Provincial revenues in the proportion of ¾ and ¼.

8. The Government of the Punjab was not at first inclined to favour the change proposed. The question has, however, subsequently been discussed informally with His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, and he has now agreed to fall in with the other provinces in accepting a uniform division of famine expenditure on the lines suggested.

9. It is not usual to make provision for famine expenditure in provincial settlements and the Government of Bihar and Orissa are not correct in assuming that allowance will be made for the provincial liability involved by our proposals when the present temporary settlement with that province is made permanent. Such a course would obviously result in making the whole expenditure on famine in that province practically Imperial.

10. For the reasons summarised in paragraph 16 of our letter of the 31st December 1914, we consider that the scheme now proposed has substantial advantages over the arrangements at present in force, and we now request your sanction to its introduction with effect from the 1st of April 1917. The balances at the credit of Provincial Governments in the pro forma account now maintained will of course be written off with effect from that date. The change will apply to all provinces, including Burma and Assam which owing to their practical immunity from famine were excluded from the existing scheme. If you find it possible to communicate your approval by telegraph by the middle of January next, we will introduce the change in the budget estimates for 1917-18: otherwise we propose to give effect to it in the revised estimates and actuals of that year.

Financial.

No. 9.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

Apportionment of expenditure on famine relief between Imperial and Provincial revenues.

I have considered in Council Your Financial Letter No. 307, dated 23rd December 1916, in which you submit proposals for the apportionment of expenditure on famine relief between the Imperial and Provincial Governments.

2. The scheme now in force is that approved in Lord Morley's Despatch No. 5 of the 11th January 1907. The ruling principle of that scheme was to enable each local Government of a Province liable to famine to build up gradually a reserve of credit with the Imperial Government on which it would be at liberty to draw when it was necessary to incur expenditure or famine relief; but, if the expenditure incurred exceeded the maximum credit, the excess was to be shared equally between the Imperial and the local Governments. If the balances of the local Government were so depleted as to fall below one-half of the prescribed minimum, further assistance was to be given from Imperial revenues according to the circumstances of the occasion.

3. You have now come to the conclusion that this scheme is unduly complicated and that it would be possible to place the question of incidence on a much simpler basis without prejudice to the essential objects in view. You therefore propose to treat the expenditure, head "33, Famine relief", as an ordinary divided head, the Imperial share being three-fourths, and the provincial share one-fourth. The local Governments have accepted the proposal subject to certain provisos. The first proviso is that provincial balances shall be safeguarded from a complete collapse; and, to meet this you have expressed to me, and will no doubt express to local Governments and Administrations, your intention to maintain the same safeguard as under the present system, viz., that when a provincial balance has been so depleted as to fall below half the prescribed minimum, assistance shall be given from Imperial revenues. The second proviso is that the definition of famine expenditure shall be widened. In paragraphs 5 and 6 of your Letter you agree that expenditure incurred both under "Scarcity" and during the period of observation and test shall be debited to the head "33, Famine Relief."

4. I agree that the adoption of your proposals will simplify the accounts and at the same time ensure an equitable distribution of the expenditure. I therefore sanction your proposals.

I have the honour to be,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

(Signed) AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN.

(4) It shall be the duty of the Supervisors appointed by the Board, in the course of their inspections of the local agencies within their respective charges, to check the payment of the cess leviable by local agents in respect of the persons recruited or engaged as labourers or assisted to emigrate by garden-sardars working under the supervision of such local agents, and to report the result of such check to the Chairman.

Irrigation.

Simla, the 18th June 1917.

Review of Irrigation in India in 1915-16.

Classification of Irrigation Works

Irrigation Works in India are divided into two main classes, viz., major and minor works. Major Works are sub-divided into :—

(a) Productive public works, the capital of which is usually provided from borrowed money.

(b) Protective works, designed as a protection against famine, the capital of which is provided from current revenues, and is usually met from the annual grant under Famine Relief and Insurance.*

Capital and revenue accounts are kept for all major works.

Minor works are constructed from funds provided from the current revenues of India, and, broadly speaking, consist of irrigation systems which are not sufficiently important to treat as major works. Some of them are old works constructed by the former rulers of this country, and extended or restored by the British Government; some are works which have been constructed by the British Government; others, again, are village works originally provided by private or communal effort, the control of which the State has been obliged to assume owing to disputes between the parties interested or their inability to maintain the efficiency of the works.

Capital and revenue accounts are maintained for the more important minor works, but for those on which the capital outlay has not exceeded half a lakh of rupees, revenue accounts only are, as a rule, maintained. There is a third class of minor works, consisting for the most part of small tanks, for which neither capital nor revenue accounts are kept. These exist principally in the Madras Presidency.

Productive Public Works.

2. Productive public works are expected within 10 years after the probable date of their completion to yield sufficient revenue to pay their working expenses and the annual interest calculated at 4 per cent on the capital invested. No project is now sanctioned as a productive public work unless it can be shown beyond reasonable doubt that when fully developed it will fulfil these conditions. This standard was not attained in the case of the earlier irrigation projects, and thus it has happened that several large irrigation works, which were financed from borrowed capital, are not remunerative. There are 14 such works, viz., two in Bihar and Orissa and two in Bengal, seven in the Deccan and Gujarat, two in Madras and one in the North-West Frontier Province. They are still retained on the list of productive works, but expenditure against their capital account is now charged against the current revenues of India. The total accumulated losses on these 14 works have exceeded the sum of $11\frac{3}{4}$ crores. But though they have proved financial failures in the ordinary commercial sense, they have been indirectly of great value in securing large areas of cultivation against the vicissitudes of the seasons.

3. The remaining works in operation, 46† in number, satisfy productive conditions. These works collectively paid during the year 9·59 per cent on

*NOTE—In such cases the expenditure is chargeable to the main head "35—Construction of Protective Irrigation Works." Expenditure in excess of this grant is chargeable to "42 A.—Expenditure on Protective Irrigation Works in addition to that charged to Famine Relief and Insurance."

†NOTE.—Except where otherwise stated, this review relates to works actually in operation The figures in the appended Financial Results of Irrigation operations deal both with works in operation and with those under construction. Hence the figures in the review do not at first sight agree with those contained in the statements referred to their capital outlay; while after paying interest charges, the surplus revenue, which they had contributed to the general revenues of the country up to the end of 1915-16, amounted to nearly 54½ crores of rupees against 45·44 crores, the capital invested on them. The financial results, and the mileage in operation for all productive public works in operation, are shown separately by provinces in Statement I.

eas irrigated, return realised roductive ks.

4. During the year under review the total area irrigated by all the productive public works, excluding branches in Native States of the Punjab, amounted to 16,639,600 acres.* Towards this total the Punjab canals contributed 7·3 million acres, Madras 3·5, the United Provinces 3 and Sind 1·4 million acres. In Bihar and Orissa an area of 815,900 acres was attained. The return on capital is highest in Madras, where the canals yielded 13·55 per cent, excluding the Kurnool and Barur systems referred to in paragraph 2, expenditure on which is charged to Revenue. The next province in this respect is the Punjab, where a return of 10·90 per cent was realised. In the United Provinces and Sind the returns realised were 8·34 per cent and 7·29 per cent, respectively. Details regarding other provinces and administrations will be found in Statement I. The return of productive works as a whole, excluding those under construction and not earning revenue, was 8·14 per cent on the capital outlay.

otective Works.

5. There were in operation in the year under review 33 protective works, which together irrigated a total of 444,400 acres. The most important works are the Ramtek reservoir in the Central Provinces, the Betwa and Ken canals in the United Provinces, the Rushikulya in Madras, and the Nira and Godavari systems in the Bombay Presidency. A number of small but interesting tank works are to be found in the Central Provinces. They were sanctioned as experimental works, in accordance with the recommendations of the Irrigation Commission, in order to test how far the people were willing to resort to irrigation for the maturing of their crops and what water rates they were prepared to pay. The results obtained are gratifying and show that the people are beginning to realise the great advantages of irrigation.

Minor Works' orks for which ital and revenue accounts are pt.

6. There were 119 works so classed in 1915-16, the majority of which are in Bombay and Madras. Eight are purely navigation works. The net revenue paid by works of this category amounted to Rs. 32,45,206 (excluding navigation canals) or a return of 7·59 per cent on the capital outlay, against 8·39 per cent in the previous year. Nearly all the minor works in Sind return exceptionally high percentages. It is in contemplation to transfer these to the major works class as soon as it is possible to amalgamate them with certain large projects which are in contemplation. The total area served by works of this class was 2,072,000 acres. This figure includes the area shown under Burma, viz., 496,105 acres, which is not under actual irrigation, but represents the area of cultivation on lands reclaimed by river flood embankments.

Vorks for ich only revenue accounts are t.

7. There are numerous works for which only revenue accounts are maintained. They are credited with a share of the land revenue depending on their maintenance and are debited with all expenditure incurred on construction, extension, improvements and maintenance. During the year reviewed these works irrigated an area of 2·5 million acres and returned a net revenue of Rs. 35,79,707.

orks for which er Capital nor nue accounts tept.

8. As explained in the opening paragraph of this review, practically all the works of the class which have neither capital nor revenue accounts are situated in the Madras Presidency. They consist of some 37,000 tanks and irrigation channels, mainly the former, the improvements and repairs of which are executed by the Public Works Department, except in the case of the smaller works which are maintained by civil officers. The areas irrigated by works of this class in 1915-16 aggregated 3,474,200 acres. The area irrigated in 1914-15 was 3,401,200 acres.

PUNJAB.

9. In the Punjab the climatic conditions for the whole year (1915-16) were unsatisfactory. During the kharif rain in February and March helped early sowings but the cultivators could not make full use of it as they were busy in harvesting the bumper rabi crops of 1915 till late in the month of April. The prevalence of plague on the Western Jumna and Sirhind canals also restricted early kharif sowings. The failure of the monsoon kept river supplies low and Inundation canals got less water than usual. The hot, dry weather caused a scarcity of fodder in the kharif particularly in the districts of Rohtak and Hissar and in Jind and Patiala States. Grass hoppers and other insects did some damage to crops on all canals, more especially on the newer ones. On the Lower Chenab canal and Lower Jhelum canal the activity of the boll worm made it necessary to grant fairly liberal remissions on account of the damage done to the cotton crops.

*NOTE—This includes the area of old irrigation shown separately in paragraph 19 of this review.

The rabi conditions were similar to the kharif. There was rain in September and October and a large area of rabi crops was sown. Much of the "barani" area was irrigated by the canals later on when the usual winter rains failed. The rivers were exceedingly low during the rabi and much difficulty was experienced in successfully adjusting the abnormally short supply to an exceptionally large demand.

In spite of unfavourable conditions and scanty rainfall the results were satisfactory. The area irrigated by works of all kinds was 8,884,811 acres of which 8,448,987 acres were matured. The corresponding figures for the triennium ending 1914-15 are 8,615,758 and 8,220,530 respectively, the increase being due mainly to the development of irrigation on the Upper Chenab canal and Lower Bari Doab canals.

The Colony canals, the Lower Chenab and Lower Jhelum, maintain their high reputation as productive investments. They irrigated 2,284,079 and 834,176 acres and earned a gross revenue of 159 and 41 lakhs, respectively, the percentages of net revenue being 39 78 and 20·70 on the Capital outlay. These figures include indirect receipts in the shape of land revenue, malikana, interest on the sale value of land and revenue generally that would not have existed but for the construction of the Colony canals and the colonization and irrigation of the Crown waste lands. If these special receipts are excluded these canals take an ordinary place among those Punjab canals whose returns are not exaggerated by indirect receipts.

The Upper Bari Doab, the Sidhnai, and the Upper Sutlej canals have also done well as their net percentage returns of 15·29, 51·55 and 18·50 respectively clearly show.

The Triple canals (the Upper Jhelum, Upper Chenab and Lower Bari Doab) show a deficit. Development on these canals has been slower than was anticipated, owing to floods in the Jhelum river delaying the completion of the head-works of the Upper Jhelum canal at Mangla. That canal has now been opened and a steady expansion of irrigation on the Triple scheme may be expected within the next few years.

The Indus Inundation canals are disappointing. The return on these canals is little or nothing, the expenditure on maintenance being heavy.

The Sutlej Valley project and the Haveli project are being modified and revised. The Woolar Lake Barrage scheme is receiving further attention in connection with its financial details. New projects under investigation are the Bakra Dam scheme for the extension of irrigation in Hissar and Rohtak and the Sind Sagar Doab project which contemplates the irrigation of a large tract of country with Indus water.

UNITED PROVINCES.

10. In the United Provinces the year was marked by deficient rainfall. The monsoons broke early in July but, for the greater part of that month and August, dry weather prevailed with occasional showers. At the end of August and early in September a cyclonic storm travelled up from the Bay and gave very heavy rain in the Cawnpore, Fatehpur and part of the Etawah districts. In the districts of Bundelkhand however the monsoons were well sustained throughout the season. There were no winter rains except light scattered showers in February.

Supplies were generally sufficient for the productive canals during the kharif except for the Ganges canal at the end of August when the demand was intense.

During the rabi, supplies were sufficient to meet the strong demand till December, but after that date the supplies fell and the demand could not be fully met.

There was little or no demand for irrigation from the protective canals whether in the kharif or rabi seasons.

The total area irrigated, 3,243, 986 acres, was 23,286 acres less than th at irrigated in the previous year, but 105,504 acres more than the average area of 3,138,482 acres for the three years ending 1914-15.

The total assessment of the year was 127¾ lakhs of rupees or Rs. 3 lakhs more than in 1914-15.

MADRAS.

11. In Madras the rainfall of both monsoons was above the average and the net cropped area in the Presidency during the year under review was 39 millio. acres, the same as in the previous year. The character of the season was favourable and the area irrigated under all classes of works, was 7,378,814 acres, exceeding the previous year's figures by about 200,000 acres.

SIND.

12. In Sind the rainfall is usually negligible and the cultivation depends almost entirely on canal irrigation. The canals depend for their supply on the inundation of the river Indus. The inundation of 1915 was, on the whole, an exceptionally low one. A peculiar feature was the unusually high river level at the commencement of the season and the subsequent failure to realize this promise of a good inundation. It is considered that the river has not reached its fair irrigating level until the reading on the gauge at Bukkur is 13 feet and that on the Kotri gauge is 17 feet. During the year under review, the 13 feet level on the Bukkur gauge was never reached and indeed readings of 12 feet and over were recorded for 5 days only. The Kotri gauge readings are now consistently higher than they used to be and the 'fair irrigating level' of 17 feet was recorded for 65 days as against 100 days in 1914 and 66 in 1913. A scanty amount of rain fell which gave no help and the only way to ward off disaster was to resort to a very rigid system of rotation. This was done with great success and consequently in spite of the low river level and the insufficient supplies in some of the canals, the year was not by any means a bad one.

The area irrigated and gross revenue during the year show a decrease of 400,000 acres and an increase of Rs. 65,000 compared with the figures for the previous year. The area irrigated at present is about a quarter of the culturable area of the province. It will, however, be possible to bring a much larger area under irrigation if the river water be headed up to the required level by the construction of a barrage across the Indus. A project for such a barrage just below Sukkur, with two large canals, one on the right and one on the left bank of the Indus, is under preparation.

BOMBAY.

13. In the Presidency proper (Deccan and Gujrat) cultivation is mainly dependent upon rainfall and the tanks and canals, therefore, are useful for the purpose of growing the more valuable crops or to counteract the evil effects of a deficient rainfall. The irrigation schemes in this part of the country involve the construction of storage reservoirs and are costly compared with t hose of Sind.

In Gujrat the rainfall during the year was much below the average. The Hathmati river gave a very poor supply and the northern part of Gujrat suffered severely, and although the best use was made of the available supply in the Hathmati and Khari systems the area irrigated was about 1-10th only of the previous ten years' average. In the Kaira and Panch Mahals districts too the supply was poor, but some of the tanks proved useful. In the Deccan Irrigation division the rainfall was, on the whole, more favourable, and consequently there was le demand for water. Hence, the irrigation on the works in operation was less than the average, especially on the largest work, the Nira Left Bank canal. The Godavari canals are now practically completed and the area of irrigation should increase rapidly.

Works in progress.—Two large protective works are under construction in the Deccan. These are the Pravara River Works project and the Nira Right Bank Canal project. The storage for the former is at Bhandardara and is termed "Lake Arthur Hill". The dam is about 100 feet high now and will eventually be 270 feet high. Good progress was made with the Nira Right Bank Canal project. The foundations for the new dam at Bhatghar have been taken out over most of the length, and more than one million cubic feet of masonry has been laid. This project, when completed, will be the largest protective Irrigation work in this Presidency.

BENGAL.

14. The canal systems in Bengal, the most important of which are the Midnapur canal, the Hijili Tidal canal, the Circular and Eastern and the Madaripur Bhil systems are used principally for navigation purposes. The Midnapur canal is also utilised for irrigation.

The total area irrigated by the last named was 83,649 acres, showing an increase compared with the preceding year. The increase was chiefly under long leases of the kharif irrigation. The financial results of this work do not fulfil productive conditions, the revenues being just sufficient to meet the working expenses. The estimated value of crops raised on the area irrigated by it amounted to Rs. 51 lakhs.

BIHAR AND ORISSA.

15. In Bihar and Orissa the Sone and Orissa canals of the productive class are used both for irrigation and navigation. The area irrigated during the year under review was 815,947 acres showing a decrease of 92,469 acres as compared with the preceding year. The decrease was chiefly on the Sone canals, and was due to a much smaller rabi area having been irrigated owing to seasonable and well-distributed rainfall during the year under report. The financial results of these works do not fulfil productive conditions, but the estimated value of crops raised on the area irrigated by them amounted to over 4 crores of rupees, or two-thirds of the total capital expended on these works. Of the whole length (61 miles) of the Tribeni canal 59 miles were in operation during the year under review, the remaining portion being opened shortly after the close of the year. The prospects of the demand for canal water are favourable. The area irrigated during the year under report was 54,090 acres against the preceding triennial average of 48,066 acres. This is almost the area anticipated in the project forecast. But compared with the previous year, there was a falling off of 22,048 acres in the area irrigated by the canal. This decrease was partly due to plentiful rainfall in the middle and latter portions of the kharif season and partly to irrigation operations having been stopped on account of the serious damage caused to the canal by heavy floods.

The construction estimate of the canal was closed on 31st March 1914. The works not finished or begun on the 1st April 1914 are being carried out on a schedule, sanctioned by the Government of India, of incomplete works to be finished by the 31st March 1920.

BURMA.

16. In Burma the season was a good one, the rainfall being generally up to the normal and well distributed, except in the Meiktila district where the early and late rains were untimely and the middle rains failed altogether with the result that little irrigation was done there. Some slight damage was done by flood in the Mandalay district and also in the Minbu district.

The area irrigated by the major canals was 269,169 acres, an increase of over 2,000 acres on the area of 1914-1915. The estimated value of the crops grown on land irrigated by major works amounted to 83·8 lakhs as against 71·6 lakhs in the previous year.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.

17. In the Central Provinces, the monsoon, throughout the province, gave ample and exceptionally well distributed rain. The total area irrigated was 52,294 acres including 6,731 acres irrigated free of charge from the Mahanadi canal as compared with 44,405 acres in the preceding year. The gross revenue realized during the year was Rs. 1,48,834 as against Rs. 1,63,926 during the previous year.

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

18. The rainfall in the North-West Frontier Province was less than that of the previous year and was about 69 per cent of the normal. During kharif the rainfall was fairly good and fairly well distributed except in Peshawar. There was practically no rain in November 1915 but during December 1915 and January and February 1916 the rainfall was generally sufficient.

The total area irrigated during the year under review was 307,145 acres against 237,822 acres in the preceding year. The increase was due to the development of irrigation on the Upper Swat River canal.

Ordered, further, that a copy of the Review be forwarded to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India for information.

F. C. ROSE,

Secretary to the Government of India.

NOTE.

The rate of interest, 3·4725 per cent., charged on the capital outlay and shown in statements I, II and III, represents the percentage of the total interest actually paid by Government during the year on the mean of the total interest bearing debt at the beginning and at the end of the year (excluding the figures relating to specific Railway debt and advances to Railway companies, vide Government of India, Finance Department, Despatch No. 262, dated the 18th July 1907).

2. The direct charges referred to in the statements are made up of outlay on (1) works, (2) establishment, (3) tools and plant, (4) suspense, and less (5) receipts on capital account.

3. The indirect charges represent the charge for :—

(a) Capitalized abatement of land revenue calculated at twenty-five times the annual amount of land revenue remitted.

(b) Leave and pension allowances calculated at the rate of 14 per cent. on the gross charges for establishment (vide Public Works Department Code, Volume II, paragraphs 1724 to 1726).

4. The phrase "sum-at-charge" mentioned in column 10 of the statements means capital outlay (direct and indirect) plus all arrears of simple interest, if any, i. e., balance of total interest over total net revenue.

5. In column 20 of the statements the percentage of working expenses to receipts represents the proportion which the working expenses of the year bear to the actual revenue collected during the year. The latter may, however, include receipts in respect of previous years or may exclude revenue due in respect of, but not collected during, the financial year to which the return relates. A more correct method of striking a ratio between working expenses and revenue is that adopted in statistical statement II-E., appended to the provincial administration reports where the revenue is taken at the amount assessed as due for the financial year concerned.
